SAY HUERTA TOOK $6,000,000

DICTATOR IN FLIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The Constitutionalists must prevent disorder and anarchy in the taking over of Mexico City, for if they do not act properly there will be no recognition of their government by the United States. Positive word to this effect today came from the White House. Emphasis was placed by the White House on the fact that Europe will look to the United States for leadership so far as the recognition of the Constitutionalists is concerned, and without such recognition the Carranza government could not survive.

MEXICO CITY, July 16.—With Victoriano Huerta in flight, Francisco Carbajal installed in the National Palace as provisional president and heavy forces of troops and police on the alert to prevent disorder, tension in this city was acute today.

Soldiers patroled the principal streets during the night to prevent any demonstration of vio-

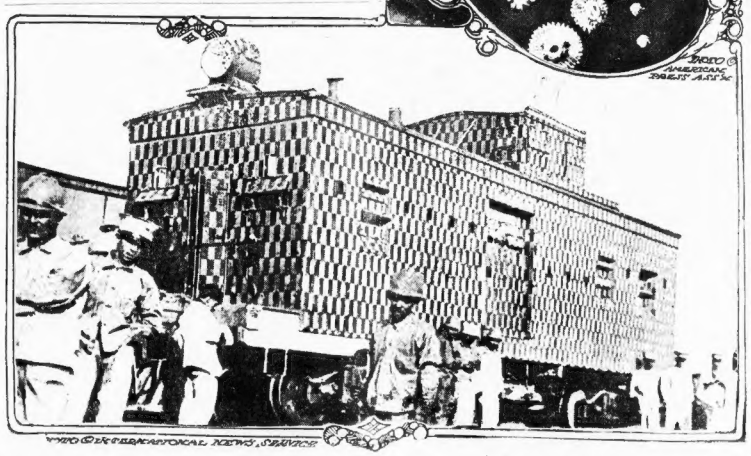
GENERAL HUERTA AND ARMORED CAR HELD TO AID HIS FLIGHT



So that his escape from Mexico may be as safe as possible, Huerta's armored train is made up of "checkered" cars, the object being to protect the guards inside from bullets fired at portholes. The "checks" cannot be distinguished from the holes at a distance.

HINT AT CARMAN PLOT

SOCIETY MAD OVER BIG BOUT

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

LONDON, July 16.—The town is in a fever of excitement as the hour approaches for the combat at the Olympia tonight between Georges Carpentier, the Paris Aconis, and Gunboat Smith, the American slugger, for the "White Hope" championship.

With even royalty giving unofficial sanction to the match, all classes are talking and thinking apparently of nothing but who will win and how many rounds the fight will go.

Women are interested in the fight in a manner so far unparalleled in the United Kingdom.

Fully 2,000 women—including members of the smart set, the hunting crowd, actresses, Music Hall favorites and even clergymen's wives—are expected at the ringside.

The news that many of the "sporting parsons" will be there and that some will bring their wives—as though to make their position stronger before their parishioners—come this noon as the climax of the extraordinary enthusiasm which has gripped the public over the event.

SCRAMBLE FOR SEATS.

Best ringside seats are already selling at a premium. The arrival of Carpentier from Paris boosted the sales until seats sold from $25 up. Then the preparations of Smith in Hook camp at Harrow-on-Hill and come into the city today added to the boom. The increase in betting and the narrowing of the odds trebled the interest, and the rush for seats increased in corresponding measure.

SHOOTING IS RETOLD BY TRAMP

NEW YORK, July 16.—Charges that friends of Mrs. Florence Carman are plotting to dupe the authorities of Nassau County in order to free her of the charge of shooting to death Mrs. Louise D. Bailey in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman at Freeport, on June 20, were made today by friends of the slain woman. This alleged conspiracy was said to take two directions as follows:

First—A plan to have her testify before the Nashua county grand jury, where the merest attempt to get evidence from her will raise the serious question of the validity of any indictment that might be returned.

Second—A plan to have an indictment for a lesser degree than first degree murder returned, which raises the technical question for the higher courts as to whether or not a defendant upon a first degree state of facts may be so indicted and convicted.

Confident predictions were made today when the Grand Jury resumed its investigation of the mysterious tragedy that both of the stumbling blocks would seriously figure in the day's proceedings and that Mrs. Carman would be permitted to appear before the jury. Friends o fthe Carman family have already assured Dr. Carman that they are prepared to furnish bail for Mrs. Carman if an indictment is returned against her. The influence of the Carmon family is strong throughout Nassau County.

RUNGE TESTIFIES.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Carman have been life-long residents of the community and for years the physician has been the family doctor for a big

GET CLEW IN BEACH TRAGEDY

The bruised and blood-stained body of a well-dressed woman was found on Winthrop beach early today, and it was not until mid-afternoon that the police got the first information that looked like a clew to her identity or to the solution of the mystery of how she met her death.

This clew came from a woman who lives at No. 65 Beach road, who refused to give her name. She said that at 9:30 last night she saw a man and a woman on the beach at the foot of Locust street — where the body was found this morning. Half an hour later, passing along the same way, she saw the woman alone, and staggering.

She could not tell whether the woman had been injured and was weak and fainting from the effect of the blow.

An examination of the body showed that one of the eyes was swollen and discolored. There was a scratch on the left side of the nose and a blood spot on one cheek.

These wounds might have been received when the woman fell into the water or very shortly afterward, or they might have been received before she fell into the water. But their nature indicated that they had been received either just before or after death, as blood had flowed freely, and the eye had swollen.

Dr. Lewis, medical examiner, performed an autopsy upon the body at the City Hospital Morgue this afternoon to determine whether drowning was the cause of death.

DESCRIPTION OF WOMAN.

The full description of the woman as given out by Dr. Leary is as follows:

AGE—About thirty.
WEIGHT—126.
HEIGHT—5 feet 2 inches.

MYSTERY IN WOMAN FOUND DEAD ON BEACH

HAIR—Light brown, some false hair.

EYES—Grayish brown.

COMPLEXION — Smooth; medium.

TEETH—Upper set false; one gold filling in lower set.

JEWELRY—Two Abalone pearl pins.

PURSE—Tucked in right stocking, contained 37 cents and a small key. In other stocking a pair of gold nose glasses.

Clothing—Blue serge coat and skirt. Coat, a three-button model, buttons blue and three small buttons at cuffs. Skirt trimmed with black. Shirt trimmed with black, with black tassels in front. Waist, blue crepe, figured dainty black silk front. White corsets. Stockings, tan. Shoes, low, tan. French heels. Shoes were of the two-button type. Clothing all of good quality.

NUMBERS IN SHOE.

Dr. Learv added that in one shoe appeared the numbers "410" and "2536." He added that the woman was married.

The body was found at about 1:10 this morning about an hour and a half after Miss Gillespie, while crossing tender at the Locust street crossing of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad. He called Alexander McGregor and Stanley Smith of No. 134 Locust street. The latter then waded in and carried the body ashore, covering it with a cloth. The police were then notified. McGregor said:

"One eye was blackened and swollen. There was a cut or deep scratch on the left side of the nose, and it had bled freely. There was a blood spot—it may have been another cut—on one cheek."

Dr. Harvey S. Ivelev of No. 325 Winthrop street was called and examined the body before Dr. Leary ordered it removed to the City Hospital morgue.

DETECTIVES BUSY.

Inspector Maurice Tipon was at once assigned to the case. He worked with Chief Wall and Lieutenant Harkins of the Metropolitan police.

The point where the body was found is on the beach opposite the foot of Locust street, between Ocean Spray and Winthrop Highlands. The tide puts the bodies in the Highlands, and the woman may have fallen in over here. The beach is full of coarse rocks and is little used for bathing.

The Winthrop police, in an effort to identify the body, notified the police of every town on the north shore of Boston and made inquiries along the Winthrop Shore Drive. They found no one who could identify the body.

SUICIDE ONE THEORY.

After the body was lifted ashore a number of ladies on the beach, many saw it, but none knew the woman. This gave rise to the belief that she was either a Summer resident or a stranger. One theory was that she was a suicide. Another was that she had jumped, fell or was thrown from some passing yacht or steamer and drifted ashore before the high land wind of the night.

One woman suggested that she might be able to identify the body. She said:

"Not long ago a woman, well dressed and well appointed, came to my house looking for lodgings. She had been wealthy, had been married and was now nearly destitute and very despondent. I am going to the morgue to see if I can identify the body as that of this woman."

The body had evidently been in the water but a short time.

Capt. Thomas' Body Found at Chatham

CHATHAM, July 16.—The body of Captain John Thomas, 60, of Hyannis, master of schooner John H. Hopkins, sunk by the steamer Monomoy off Nantucket last Saturday night, was ashore here early today and was found by Captain Doane of the life saving station. Captain Thomas refused to jump and went down with the schooner. He lived in Hyannis.

Street Fight Sends One to Hospital

As a result of an altercation between three bicyclists early today on Marcella street, Roxbury, John Carson is at the City Hospital with serious bruises about the face and concussion of the brain. The police have questioned him, but Carson refuses to tell the names of the men with whom he fought, and the affair is forgotten in its progress. He is thirty-two and lives in Newton.

G LADYS CHASE, believed by her sister to have been enticed from home in Dorchester.

Hunt for Girl Who Slipped Away from Home in Dorchester

Search was made in Boston today for fourteen-year-old Gladys P. Chase. She left the home of her sister, Mrs. Lizzie H. Adams, No. 41 Dix street, Dorchester, in the evening after her feminine mother-in-law to bed early, letting down her skirt to appear older and turning on the water at the kitchen faucet so the noise would cover the sound of her footsteps down the kitchen stairway. Such is Mrs. Adams' opinion of Gladys' method.

The girl looks sixteen or seventeen, is well developed, five feet two inches tall, and weighs 120 pounds. Her complexion is medium. She has brown hair and brown eyes. She left home in a dark brown suit, white, rose-trimmed hat, black boots and black stockings.

Mrs. Adams fears the girl has been enticed away. She took no money, so far as known, although Mrs. Adams' purse, containing several dollars, was within easy reach.

Fight Fire in Big City Block For Two Hours

A fire of mysterious origin smouldered for two hours in the shop of Samuel Miller on the second floor of No. 451 Washington street early today. It was discovered by Patrolman Earle and extinguished with a loss of $1,000.

Miller runs a women's clothing establishment, and of the ground floor is Andrews & Co.'s shoe store. A clock near where the fire started stopped at 6:30, indicating that the fire had been smouldering since that time.

Basing for the fire, the tender of Engine 4 was about to collide with a city wagon loaded with Williams court when Driver Hilburn pulled his horses sharply to one side and escaped a collision.

The building in which the fire occurred is ten stories high.

Curley May Appoint Policewomen in Hub

Policewomen may become a fact in Boston. Mayor Curley is now considering whether or not he will appoint policewomen, as he is authorized to do under a recent legislative act. Miss Marion Nichols, legislative agent for the bill just passed, has asked the Mayor to make the appointments and has submitted to him a list of possible candidates.

'Phone Girl Gets Watch.

Miss Agnes Ware, former telephone operator in the assessing department, was presented with a brooch pin and a gold watch by the Board of Assessors and the clerks in the department today.

ST. PETERSBURG IN FLAMES; FOUR REPORTED DEAD

ST. PETERSBURG, July 16.—One thousand troops were pressed into service today to fight the conflagration which is sweeping through the quarter of the city inhabited by working people. Two thousand persons are homeless and at least four persons have been killed. Scores of buildings have been burned.

The St. Petersburg fire is one of a series of conflagrations throughout the Russian empire, huge tracts of forests and peat beds are in flames.

Special services are being held in the churches, where the priests and people are praying daily for rain and for relief from the intense heat wave. The hot weather parched the forests, making the trees excellent fuel for the roaring fires.

An ironical phase of the situation is that while the residents of threatened districts are praying for rain the Kuban River in southeastern Russia is out of bounds, causing much damage in that part of the empire.

Ocean-Going Tug, Sea King, High and Dry on Nix's Mate

The ocean-going tug Sea King, inward-bound with a coal-laden barge and a scow in tow, ran ashore early today on Nix's Mate, where the outgoing tide left it high and dry.

The mishap occurred under cover of the heavy fog which blanketed the entire Massachusetts coast, tying up shipping. Captain Mooney and his crew stayed aboard the tug, and the tug Orion stood by to pull off the Sea King at high water. The Sea King was formerly known as the Sewaystakes, which was recently rebuilt and equipped with new boilers. This was the first trip under its new name.

10 Per Cent. Jump in Philadelphia Prices

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—The high cost of living in Philadelphia is still ascending. Prices of the necessities of life compared with the figures given the kitchen staff, was such in Mrs. Adams' opinion of Gladys' method.

Sale prices of dressed meat are $12 to $13 higher and the retail price 2 and 3 cents higher on the pound. Fish and vegetables are also higher. Butter, eggs, cheese and other staples of diet are much higher. Cold storage eggs are selling at 23 cents a dozen, but "strictly fresh" eggs range from 33 to 38 cents a dozen.

WALSH WILL NOT REAPPOINT DR. MAGRATH

Governor Walsh let it be known today that he will refuse to reappoint Medical Examiner George R. Magrath of Suffolk County, who has been holding over since his regular term expired January 16 last.

The Governor confirmed a report that he had been in receipt of numerous charges made against the medical examiner and said further that out of these charges has grown a situation for which he cannot accept responsibility.

The Governor expressed a disinclination to discuss the nature of the charges made against Medical Examiner Magrath. Whether well founded or not, however, the situation is such that the present medical examiner cannot hope for reappointment.

On petition of ten tax-paying citizens of New Bedford, Judge Pierce of the Supreme Court today enjoined Mayor Charles S. Ashley and the New Bedford Board of Aldermen from carrying out a paving contract with Warren Brothers on the ground that the contract was made by the Board of Aldermen alone, and should have been made by the Aldermen and Common Council, together.

Miss Deslys and Linder were rescued with great difficulty.

NEW HAVEN R. R. DIRECTORS ACT ON SUIT TODAY

New Haven stock sold at 49¾, a new low record price, early today, but quickly rallied.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Confronted with the alternative of effecting reform in their organization or being attacked by the Federal government, directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad met today in the most important conference that they have ever held.

In view of the admitted importance of the meeting a committee of the most prominent financiers in the country was appointed to confer with the directors. The committee is composed of James Stillman, president of the National City Bank; Henry P. Davison, a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., and George F. Baker, president of the First National Bank.

This was taken as an indication that a decision had already been reached to fight the government's demand for either the separation of the Boston & Maine and New Haven lines or that on this point only a vote of ratification was to be taken.

Financial circles awaited the meeting with intense interest and sought to secure a forecast of the matters to be discussed, but without result. It was hinted broadly that any announcement to be made would be held up until after the close of the market.

Trading reflected pessimism over the road's condition today. The stock opened at 51, but large selling orders soon sent it down to 50.

Mrs. Wakefield Chose to Stay at Plew Home

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 16.—Mrs. Bessie J. Wakefield was dressed in black as she came into the criminal superior courtroom for the third day of her trial on the charge of complicity with James Plew in the murder of her husband, killed in the Cheshire woods in June, 1913. After a short conversation with her mother, Mrs. Webster, who sat in the courtroom and who brought the accused some fruit which she ate with a relish, she took her place at the table with her counsel and the testimony began yesterday before Judge Reed and a jury was resumed.

Dwight Wheeler of Middlebury testified that after Mrs. Wakefield left her husband and went to live with the Plews he witnessed, tried to get her to return, but she refused, saying her husband was "not fit to live with." Wheeler said Wakefield was always a good provider.

Tax Rates in Bedford and Braintree Drop

The Braintree tax rate is ninety cents less this year than in 1913. A drop of $2.50 is announced in the Bedford tax rate to $19.50.

POLICE HERO RESCUES SICK WOMAN AT FIRE

Daring rescues of a bedridden woman and two young children featured a fire which caused a $2,500 loss in a two-and-a-half-story wooden tenement house at No. 5-11 Larkin street, Roxbury, early today.

Otto Wetterland, who occupied the first floor of the building, fought his way through the smoke with his two young children, forgetting in the excitement that his invalid wife was bedridden inside.

As Wetterland appeared in the street he was met by Patrolman Madden of the Dudley street station, who learned of Mrs. Wetterland's peril.

Madden stopped only long enough to learn the location of her room, then dashed into the blazing structure, from which he emerged totteringly a few minutes later with the semi-conscious woman in his arms.

The fire started in an unoccupied tenement on the second floor, where painters had been at work. It is thought to have resulted from spontaneous combustion among the painters' materials.

PLAN FUNERAL OF BOY SHOT AT MOTHER'S SIDE

Arrangements are under way today for the funeral of James W. Clear, fourteen, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Clear of No. 241 Church street, Newton, who was accidentally shot and killed while walking with his mother on the shore of East Bay at Osterville, Cape Cod. Mrs. Clear is prostrated with grief.

Mother and son had been rowing on East Bay, and on their return made their way, arm in arm, along the sand toward the cottage of Mrs. Lucy E. Prescott, where Clear is employed as chauffeur.

A shot rang out, and Mrs. Clear turned to her son, only to see the boy slip from her partial embrace to the ground, with a bullet behind his ear. He died almost instantly.

Investigation showed that Bernard and Edward Ames, sons of Constable Samuel N. Ames, Osterville, had been shooting at a carbide can as a target just the other side of a small pond, and that one of their shots, going wild, was probably responsible for the Clear boy's death.

JAMES W. CLEAR.

18 SAVED AS FISHERMAN HITS AND SINKS

How their ship struck a rock and sank like a plummet beneath them, and how they themselves tumbled head over heels into dories hastily shoved overboard and escaped as the schooner was sinking, was told by the crew of the fishing schooner Galatea who came in today on the schooner Rob Roy.

Captain Hobson and seventeen men—the entire crew of the Galatea, were aboard her when last Tuesday in a blow she struck a rock on Georges bank. There was a mad scramble to get the dories over, and they drew clear as the Galatea plunged nose downward to the bottom. After hours in the dories, they were sighted by the Rob Roy, rescued and brought to port.

The Galatea was owned by A. M. Watson of Boston. Her crew today were shifted to another of his schooners, the Alice, and—so small a matter as a mere shipwreck in their lives—will shortly go to sea in her.

The Galatea was 76 feet long and 20.6 beam. She was worth $6,000 and insured.

Mrs. Farrel said: "I simply saw the notice in the Boston AMERICAN that Miss Faust was missing. This set me thinking, and with the aid of another person, we located her at No. 2657 E. De Soto street, St. Louis, Mo., where she is working in a large shoe manufactory."

W. E. COREY'S FORMER WIFE IS WED TO N.Y. MAN

NEW YORK, July 16.—Mrs. Laura Cook Corey, who divorced William Ellis Corey, formerly president of the United States Steel Corporation, was married last Friday at Noroton, Ct., to Leon A. Duckworth, general retail manager of the Estey Company, dealers in pianos and organs at No. 22 West Forty-second street. The information became public on the receipt of the wedding announcements.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. Carlos Martyn, pastor of the Noroton Presbyterian Church. The fact that the couple complied with the new law of Connecticut, requiring five days' advance notice when applying for the license, disposed of elopement reports, according to friends.

Recently Mr. Duckworth installed a pipe organ in the church of which Rev. Mr. Martyn is pastor. Taking advantage of his friendship with the pastor, the bridegroom was able to wed Mrs. Corey without public attention.

Cards received yesterday by Pittsburgh friends from Mrs. Corey, stated that the happy couple would soon be on their way to Europe. They had anounced in Noroton they would sail Saturday on the Olympia.

At the office of Allen Corey, son of the bride, it was admitted yesterday that the wedding had taken places.

The present Mrs. Duckworth became the bride of William Ellis Corey in 1898. She was one of the belles of Braddock, Pa. The Corey divorce of 1906 attracted the notice of the entire country. Mr. Corey had been taken up by Andrew Carnegie as one of his "young men," and was widely known.

Mrs. Corey went to Nevada and obtained her divorce. It was asserted a financial settlement was made out of court.

Mr. Corey married Mabelle Gilman in May 1907, and they went to live in a chateau in France. The former wife of the steel magnate returned to her modest country home at Swissvale, near Pittsburgh, a few late years she has traveled extensively. Several weeks ago she came to New York. She was stopping at the St. Regis until a few hours before her wedding.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Ernst H. Brandt, well known in this city and throughout the country, has recently resigned as general manager of the Detroit-Cadillac Motor Car Company of New York, to accept a very important position with the Hudson Motor Car Company of Detroit.

As district manager he will represent the company in eastern New York, all of New England, northern New Jersey and eastern Canada. His headquarters will be in New York city.

Mr. Brandt was formerly supervisor of the Eastern States for the United States Motor Company and it is not too much to say that Mr. Brandt's experience and good judgment combined with his enthusiasm, will even further cement the good feeling now existent between the Hudson Company and its dealers throughout the territory.

DUCHESS OF WESTMINSTER, who is fighting the Duke for the custody of their two daughters.

Westminsters War for Custody of Girls at Secret Session

LONDON, July 16.—The greatest secrecy is being preserved concerning the action being heard in the high courts in which the litigants are the Duke and Duchess of Westminster. The AMERICAN correspondent was able to learn that the action was brought by the Duchess, who seeks a judicial ruling on her right to the custody of her two daughters, the Ladies Ursula and Mary Grosvenor.

A large array of legal talent was engaged by both sides, which means that the Duke is putting up a good fight to keep his daughters. The Duchess appeared in court to press her plea, but the Duke was not present.

ASK ELOPER'S RETURN TO SAVE LIFE OF FATHER

"Gladys, come home, come home to your father, if you ever expect to see him alive," was the appeal made today by Mrs. John F. Lewis, mother, and Mrs. Jennie McDonald, aunt, of Gladys Lewis, the seventeen-year-old Medford girl, believed to have eloped with Arthur F. Jones of Dorchester, a married man, last Friday.

The father was thought to be near death today, suffering from brain fever following a search in many New England cities for his missing child.

APPEAL TO GIRL.

The appeal made by mother and aunt continued: "It may be too late when you see this, but in the name of all the love he has given you all your life, hurry home before he dies.

"Don't be afraid of us—we do not want to harm you nor harm the man you went away with—all we want is for you to come home to see your father who is dying with brain fever from grief over his Gladys. We all love you and will forget and forgive everything before you ask it."

Lewis' collarless came after a day spent in endeavoring to find some clew to help in his search for his daughter. He had tramped the streets of Boston, going from place to place and visiting every agency that might aid him in securing information.

He returned at supper time and when Mrs. Lewis asked him if he would not eat something, he staggered to a chair and declared that he would never again until Gladys come home. After that he became incoherent and the doctors were summoned hastily.

ORDEAL CAUSES COLLAPSE.

At the time of his daughter's disappearance, Mr. Lewis was ill in bed from an attack of acute indigestion. Despite his weakened condition he insisted in leaving the house and instituting the search. He visited several cities and Tuesday spent the day in Portland.

His collapse, the physicians say, was the direct result of the ordeal he has undergone.

LIQUOR GRAFT CHARGES STIR UP MALDENITES

Ever since the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Moss, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Malden, held up in his pulpit a bottle of whiskey and asked: "Who's to blame for this being sold in Malden?" Maldenites have been talking over the incident and wondering where the minister got the liquor he has not told.

Mayor Sommaker has threatened to sue Dr. Moss, it is charged, because something derogatory to his character was said in a sermon last Sunday night.

The Mayor, when asked whether he had employed counsel to defend him in his suit against the minister, laughed it off, by saying:

"I haven't anything against Dr. Moss, but he's been saying so many things lately that he would provoke a saint. He says I'm responsible for liquor being sold in Malden by the druggists and that the 'pony' licenses should not have been increased to eighteen this year. I am hand and hand with Dr. Moss in making this a better city.

The Rev. Dr. Moss, who has just returned from his country home, paid a hurried visit to the police commissioners' company with the Hev. H. W. Pringle of the International Reform Bureau.

It is said anything against Mayor Schumaker in a public speech of mine he can find fault with, neither I or Rev. Dr. Moss is any slanderer him. I do hold him responsible for the conditions over here, and I have with me the best citizens of Malden," asserted Dr. Moss.

"I want this city ridden of graft. It can be made cleaner. Many parishioners have written me letters thanking me for the course I have taken. Some of these letters, if made public, would make pathetic reading.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. J. McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has had raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

The Coolest Store in Boston

WANDEROBOS BANISHED FOR SCANT ATTIRE

The manager of Rainey's African hunt pictures at the Shubert is a girl. She is the only lady show manager at the present time. She looks like an ingenue and butter wouldn't melt in her mouth.

When she arrived in Boston she picked out half a dozen big photographs of lions, tigers, etc., and also a picture of a string of African negroes belonging to the tribe of Wanderobos and put them in a frame in the lobby. She put the Wanderobos on top. Being African savages the Wanderobos were not exactly clad in furs but they were interesting to look at.

Yesterday a policeman from Station Four entered the Shubert Theatre and demanded the manager. The lady manageress presented herself attired in a white crepe de chine trimmed with mousseline de soie and cut on the bias.

POINTS OUT PICTURE.

"Was there something?" she inquired sweetly.

"You got to take that picture out of here. The captain says there has been complaint about it."

The officer placed a manly thumb upon the strip of Wanderobos.

"Dear me," said the lady manager, "what's wrong with it?"

"It's improper," replied the minion.

"What is improper?" demanded the lady, staring at the picture earnestly.

The policeman blushed. It was a wonderful sight. Manager Ed Smith of the Shubert says it reminded him of a Turner sunset. The lady gazed at the officer wide eyed.

"I am a respectable married man and I ain't going to tell you," replied the policeman, "but if you don't take it in the house is pinched."

PICTURE IS TAKEN IN.

The picture was taken in. The manageress showed it to the box office man and the door-keeper, and asked them if they saw anything wrong. They did not.

"Well, what is it?"

They blushed and refused to tell.

"I am sure I don't see anything wrong with that picture," said the lady regarding it fondly.

Manager Ed Smith strolled down to a hardware store and came back with a small package. "Now take your picture and base it through this," he said. The package contained a magnifying glass.

The lady returned in a few minutes and her cheeks were crimson. She said: "There are lots of things in Boston that wouldn't look well under a magnifying glass."

DANIEL F. HURLEY, South Boston boy, who charges that Patrolman William J. Brown assaulted him.

Patrolman Brown Denies Hitting Boy

Patrolman William J. Brown of Broadway station, South Boston, denied today that he ever struck Daniel J. Hurley of No. 134 Fourth street, whose mother declares the police have persecuted her son. Brown says: "I never put my hand on the boy and never was within twenty feet of him at any time. I wouldn't hit a boy like that under any consideration. I never did and never would."

A number of men, women and young people living along Brown's beat speak well of him and are prepared to testify for him as character witnesses.

Finds Daughter After Long Search

After a search of eight years T. D. Ingersoll of Boston will soon be united with his daughter, who was found by the Rev. Mr. Laningham, Superintendent of Charities at Yakima, Wash. The girl, who is now fourteen, was taken away by her stepmother eight years ago. Her father has hunted all over the country for her.

POWDER IN SHOES AS WELL AS GUNS

Foot-Ease to Be Added to Equipment of Hospital Corps at Fort Wayne.

Under the above heading the Detroit Free Press, among other things says: "The theory is that soldiers whose feet are in good condition can walk further and faster than soldiers who have corns and bunions incased in rawhide."

The Government's foot powder order is regarded as the last word in the scientific outfitting of the defenders of the flag."

This foot powder, shaken in the shoes of soldiers, has long been in use in the German army, and Uncle Sam's adoption of this form of treating and easing the feet is in line with the expressions heard daily for more than twenty years, in all parts of the world, from millions of people who are shaking Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder for the feet, into their shoes, as the only practical and safe treatment for easing and absolutely preventing sore feet. It can be obtained from dealers everywhere for 25c, or a trial package will be sent by mail free if you write to Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

"UNWRITTEN LAW" DEFENCE SAVED SOME WOMEN, WHY NOT MRS. CARMAN?

5 ACCUSED ESCAPED PENALTY

"Why doesn't the 'unwritten law' apply to women?"

It does.

This is the answer to a question that is being asked in connection with the case of Mrs. Florence Carman, who is charged with the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey. And the answer is taken from the records of the time.

Here are five comparatively recent cases of women who relied solely upon the unwritten law for protection and found it there. In not one of them was there question that the killing was accomplished.

In any one of them a jury could have found a first degree murder verdict based solely upon the cold facts.

But there stood between each defendant and the death penalty the sentiment that, law or no law, a woman should not be killed for shooting where honor was involved.

Some of the recent incidents where women slayers were freed after invoking the "common law" are as follows:

THE CASE OF SARAH KOTEN.

In the Summer of 1905 Dr. Herman Auspitz, a wealthy Manhattan physician, killed himself; that was the expression—"he killed himself"—used by Sarah Koten, a Russian immigrant girl, whose finger pulled the trigger of the revolver that snuffed out the physician's life, and in the light of all great teaching of moral law he took his own life.

The most influential men and the wealthiest and most fashionable women of New York, knowing the strict course of the law, nevertheless declared Sarah Koten had committed no murder when she slew Dr. Auspitz, and that contention was upheld when Judge Blanchard declared her a free woman.

Dr. Auspitz drugged Sarah Koten in his office and wronged her. When motherhood approached Sarah Koten was kicked into the street to give birth to her baby wherever she chose. Then the centuries-old law of life to which the Russian Jews have clung through the years of their persecution asserted itself in the mind and heart of this girl—and she decoyed Dr. Auspitz to a deserted hallway and shot him dead.

MRS. PATTERSON'S PLIGHT.

Mrs. Gertrude Gibson Patterson, lithe and beautiful as a Brinkley girl, had declared one of the most attractive women who ever faced a jury box, when she killed her husband, Charles A. Patterson, in Denver, Col., on September 25, 1911. She did not attempt to deny it, and the "murder" even was seen by several witnesses. BUT A JURY OF TWELVE MEN DECLARED HER NOT GUILTY OF MURDER.

Cold fact and legal evidence are thrown into the discard in the Patterson case; they count for absolutely nothing. And why? Perhaps here again the unwritten law, that stands behind the woman who kills in defense of her honor, applies. Mrs. Patterson, admitting that she shot down her husband as he might shoot down a dog with animal, pleaded only that she had been driven to desperation by the act after Patterson had sold her for $1,500 to Emil W. Strouse, a Chicago millionaire. With that story of hers established beyond a doubt, would any twelve decent men declare guilty of murder a woman who killed the man who would have sold his wife to be the mistress of another?

Strouse years before had educated this woman and, in fact, had lived with her as his wife. Patterson, desperate to "do the deed past hurt its dead," shot when the girl's pitiful story backed up the unwritten law by declaring emphatically that Josephine Terranova had not committed murder.

MRS. ANNA M. BRADLEY'S CASE.

Because he would not marry her and so legitimatize their two children, Mrs. Anna M. Bradley shot and mortally wounded former United States Senator Arthur Brown of Utah, on December 5, 1906, in his apartments in the Hotel Raleigh, Washington. Her guilt, so far as it concerned the actual circumstances of the shooting was established be-

Dr. Edwin Carman, posed for the American at Freeport yesterday, and fac-simile of part of Mrs. Carman's statement to the Grand Jury. Below is Dr. William H. Runcie, who examined Mrs. Bailey's body after her murder, an important witness for the State.

I am willing that any statement I may make before the Grand Jury may be used against me at any future trial on hearing.

Mrs. Corbey ...denied that she was one of the two ...mysterious women who were in the ...office, and said that she went ...to the Carman home after the mur... ...der. She had little to tell the jurors.

Frederick Slosser, proprietor of the Five Points Tavern in Lyndbrook, appeared ready that Mrs Bailey and Mr. Carman had been at his place prior to the murder.

Mrs. Corbey testified to important witness by Assistant District Attorney Smith that she discredited the statements of Cecilia Coleman, the colored servant in the Carman household.

Mrs. Corbey said she was at her home when she received a telephone message saying that something had happened at the Carman residence. When she arrived there she questioned the maid and asked her if she had seen any one run through the house or to the back door. According to this witness Cecilia declared she had seen no one.

This statement from the maid is direct contradiction of the story that she now tells. The weight of the evidence by Mrs. Corbey was considered great notwithstanding the fact that she is related to Mrs Carman.

When Slosser retired the grand jurors went into executive session and there was much speculation as to what would come next.

After deliberating for a short time the jurors called back Frank J. Farrell, the tramp, and asked him for a more detailed description of the woman he saw in the Carman lawn at the time of the shooting.

Mrs. Jennie Duryea, mother of the murdered woman, declared that she believes Mrs. Carman was temporarily insane at the time her daughter was killed.

"I believe Mrs. Carman is guilty," declared Mrs. Duryea. "Why did she come down stairs with a pistol in her hand if she acted without premeditation? I fully believe that Mrs. Carman was temporarily insane when the shooting took place. If she would confess that she didn't mean to shoot my daughter I would not want her punished. But then the question arises:

"What satisfaction would it be to me to have her go to the chair? It wouldn't bring my poor little girl back.

"If any one wanted to murder my daughter why did that person do it in the doctor's office? There was an opportunity in the street or near her own home. My daughter was a lively girl; she was always laughing, and the night she went to see Dr. Carman something was said that made her laugh. Mrs. Carman heard her laugh and came down to see what the laughter was about. It seems very strange to me that Mrs. Conklin has not been on the stand more fully concerning her knowledge of the events on the night of the murder. It strikes me that she knows more than she has told."

Mrs. Duryea declared her belief that Mrs. Carman is relying upon the beauty to make an impression upon members of the Grand Jury and that it was for this reason she asked to appear before that body.

HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

LADY HERBERT IS A VISITOR IN NEWPORT

BOSTONIANS STAYING IN THE BERKSHIRES HAVE GALA TIME

Boston and Newport society is interested in the arrival here of Sir Arthur and Lady Herbert and their son, J. A. Herbert. They came to Boston on the Cunarder Laconia from their English home in Monmouthshire to visit Lady Herbert's sister, Mrs. T. Shaw Safe, at "Ocean Lawn," the Newport home of the Safes.

Lady Herbert was Miss Helen L. Gammell of Providence when Arthur James Herbert was secretary to the British Embassy at Washington, and was one of the noted beauties of Newport society. They met several times at Washington and Newport and were married before Mr. Herbert won his knighthood.

Since leaving Washington Sir Arthur has been Secretary of the Legation at Copenhagen, Consul-General at Budapest, Charge d'Affairs at Darmstadt and Carlsruhe, Minister at Christiania and from 1910 until his retirement was Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Mexico.

They will remain in Newport for the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar van Etten, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Willian, Alban Climan at Great Barrington, have motored from there to their camp in the Adirondacks, where they are to spend the remainder of the Summer.

Mount Lassen Again in Active Eruption

REDDING, Cal., July 16.—Lassen Peak is again in a state of eruption of magnitude unequalled since the volcano first woke to renewed life on May 30. The ascending column of steam and ashes is double the height of any previously seen.

Judge Bruce Bars Brothers Walking on Street Together

Walter and Thomas Brennan, brothers, charged with being members of the band of boy burglars who broke into several stores and houses in Malden, cannot walk together on the street for at least thirty days, and must be in the house each night at 6, by order of Judge Bruce in the Malden Court.

These boys, with Stanley Bosek, William Callahan, Alexander Goble and Peter Lavelle, were placed on probation for a month. Final disposition of the cases will be made later. Judge Bruce gave the boys a severe lecture.

Woman Mistakes Belgian King for Taxicab Driver

GENEVA, July 16.—At Territet the King and Queen of Belgium were motoring. His Majesty was driving and there were no attendants. The Queen went into a shop. An American woman jumped into the car, which she mistook for a taxicab, and bade the monarch drive her quickly to her hotel. "Certainly, madam," said the King, and deposited the woman at her hotel.

In the meanwhile the Queen had come out of the store and was surprised to find her husband and the car absent. Later their Majesties laughed over the story together.

CORONER WILL TEST DEFENCE OF MRS. ANGLE

STAMFORD, Ct., July 16.—Coroner John J. Phelan of Bridgeport, who came to this city to investigate the death of Waldo R. Ballou, at the request of Judge H. Stanley Finch, counsel for Mrs. Helen M. Angle, who is held without bail pending the outcome of the inquiry, is today expected to determine whether Ballou could have been killed by falling downstairs, as claimed by the defence.

Judge Finch it was learned, had asked the coroner to make the examination, in order that he might be in a better position to understand the evidence which it is expected will be given by Patrick Rabbitt, a carpenter, who lives in the building where Mrs. Angle's rooms are, when the inquest is resumed next Monday.

Rabbitt, questioned by the police, said he had heard a noise on the night of Ballou's death, as if a bed had been broken down. He did not investigate. Judge Finch, it is learned, has secured an affidavit from Rabbitt which goes into a lengthy description of the sound he heard that night. Rabbitt's story, it is expected, will be the only evidence which the defence will submit to the coroner next Monday, and will be offered to support their contention that Ballou came to his death by a fall downstairs.

Comes Here to Foil Murder of Husband

BALTIMORE, Md., July 16.—Mrs. Barbala Varga of Western Hungary, who landed here from the steamship Neckar, startled the immigration officials when she told them that she had come to this country for the express purpose of preventing the murder of her husband, John Varga, of No. 2949 Dentle street, Philadelphia. She is being held by the authorities.

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of This Free Prescription—Try It If Your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer from eye troubles because they do not know what to do. They know some good home remedy for every other minor ailment, but none for their eye troubles. They neglect their eyes, because the trouble is not sufficient to drive them to an eye specialist, who would, anyway, prescribe them a heavy fee. As a last resort they go to an optician or to the five and ten-cent store, and oftentimes get glasses that they do not need, or which, after being used two or three months, do their eyes more harm than good. Here is a simple prescription that every one should use.

1 grain Optona (4 tablets).
2 ounces Water.

Use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This prescription and the simple Optona system keeps the eyes clean, sharpens the vision and quickly overcomes inflammation and irritation; weak, watery, overworked, tired eyes and other similar troubles are greatly benefited and oftentimes cured by its use. EXPECT HUERTA WILL SAIL FOR EUROPE ON A FOREIGN WARSHIP

lence led by the supporters of Huerta, but the hours of darkness passed quickly.

According to information received in Carranza by his agents, Senator Juarez carried with him from Mexico City drafts on Paris banks to the amount of $1,000,000.

President Carbajal has taken office with the pledge to do his utmost to restore peace in Mexico and facilitate re-establishment of friendly relations with the United States.

Whether he will be successful depends upon the revolutionists. Many Madero leaders have already given their endorsement to the new President. They will urge General Carranza to co-operate with him for a cessation of hostilities throughout the republic, but the success of their efforts is doubtful.

REAL CRISIS AT HAND.

That the real crisis in Mexico is at hand is the general opinion here. What effect the resignation of Huerta will have upon the fate of foreigners cannot be foretold, but there are strong fears among the foreigners that the Federal forces, left without the iron hand that guided them in the futile efforts to halt the ravages of the Constitutionalist forces southward, will commit excesses that will shock the civilized world.

The resignation of Huerta was brought about by many months of patient work by members of the diplomatic corps here, particularly Sir Lionel Carden, British minister, and Senor Oliveira, the Brazilian envoy, but even they admit that the situation is fraught with peril.

HUERTA FORCED TO YIELD.

The Huerta dynasty ended in a fine day's drinking bout which started on Saturday last in the Jockey Club.

Admiration officials today were jubilant over General Huerta's retirement from power in Mexico City. President Wilson's supporters claimed credit for having forced the dictator out. While no assurance was given that the change in the Mexican capital would bring about a speedy adjustment of the internal difficulties in the republic, it was assumed that the Constitutionalist forces soon would be in control of the city and take steps to institute reforms.

CARRANZA WILLING TO MEET DELEGATES OF NEW PRESIDENT

SALTILLO, Mexico, July 16.—General Carranza is willing to meet representatives of provisional President Carbajal and accept from them the terms of surrender, but at the first intimation that efforts are being made to delay the final triumph of the revolution he will order the capture of the capital. No dickering, no treachery, will be tolerated.

This position of the first chief of the Constitutionalists was made plain by his supporters today when they learned that Maderista deputies had left the capital supposedly to bring Carranza proposals for the peaceful entry of the Constitutionalists into the capital.

Gen. Obregon, who is in command of the troops still loyal, and there fight to the death against the rebels. Huerta's last official act declared that he would still remain surrounding in the capital, but he had also ordered his intention of not resigning. Members of the diplomatic corps believe that he will go to Europe and there pass the rest of his days.

FUNSTON MESSAGE CAUSES ANXIETY IN WAR DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON, July 16.—War Department officials were disturbed by a long code message received early today from General Funston at Vera Cruz. When the cabinet was called by the telephone to General Mitchell-spoon, chief of staff, he reported that the situation under no circumstances be made public.

This set afloat at the department a report that General Funston had been advised of a new menacing situation as the result of Mexico City developments, and asked for suggestions for instructions. One official suggested that in the absence of pledge from Carranza to protect foreign property, General Funston has reason to fear for the safety of foreigners.

The possibility that additional troops may have to be sent to Vera Cruz to cope with any emergency that may arise in Mexico City by reason of the change in government there was being considered, there today by Secretary Garrison and General Wotherspoon. No immediate action will be taken, but it is understood that division commanders along the Texas border have been advised to keep their commands in readiness for immediate movement.

Funston's forces at Vera Cruz will be strengthened by marines from the ships under Admiral Badger's command.

Sailors acting as an auxiliary force will bring the numerical strength of the American forces there up to nearly 6000 men. No ships will be withdrawn from Vera Cruz pending the settlement of conditions in Mexico city.

Administration officials today were jubilant over General Huerta's retirement from power in Mexico City. President Wilson's supporters claimed credit for having forced the dictator out. While no assurance was given that the change in the Mexican capital would bring about a speedy adjustment of the internal difficulties in the republic, it was assumed that the Constitutionalist forces soon would be in control of the city and take steps to institute reforms.

MAY SEND MARINES.

In the meantime all foreigners have been warned to keep out of action that might precipitate a reign of terror.

In this city today Americans and other foreigners remained close to the concentration zones. They were advised to keep off the streets as far as possible. Within the last two days many messages have been exchanged between the capital and the fleet commanders at Vera Cruz. In these preparations were made for the sending of an international force of marines here in case such action became necessary. It was to this end the bringing of marines to this city. If such action were found necessary, that the diplomats could leave in order to resign the national line where it was broken near Vera Cruz. Work on these lines was already under way.

Though Huerta resigned late yesterday afternoon, any negotiations from the capital before congress had accepted the resignation and before it his withdrawal city not reach all sections of the city until this morning. The news published at the evening papers was the first information received by thousands that the dictator had run his course.

Government affairs went on as usual at the various bureaus today. They were conducted by subordinates, the cabinet ministers having accepted their resignations with President Carbajal. It is probable that some of the former ministers will be called to certain offices, but others will be eliminated. Minister of War Blanquet left the capital with Huerta, who was also accompanied by a large number of friends.

SIXTEEN MILES BY AUTO.

Going by automobile to Los Reyes, sixteen miles from the capital, Huerta and his party boarded a train that had been in readiness there for many hours. Though it was stated at the National Palace that Huerta's destination was unknown to officials there, it was generally understood that he was on his way to Puerto Mexico to board the Dutch cruiser Kortlander.

Reports were generally in circulation today that a Huerta party was the commander of the Kortenaer, which recently came to the capital on a friendly mission.

The sailing of the Spanish steamer Alfonso XIII. from Vera Cruz was announced this morning until afternoon, leading to rumors that she was being held until the arrival of General Huerta and his party from Mexico city. The steamer is going to Havana and Spanish ports. Before Huerta's power is known or any definite news that Huerta and Blanquet had gone

OUIMET PLAYS IN REAL FORM AT BRAE-BURN

DRAW FOR MATCH PLAY.
First Round.

J. B. Hylan vs. R. C. Lehane.
J. Schofield vs. A. J. Wellington.
J. W. Claffin vs. F. W. Whittemore.
R. D. Purves vs. C. S. Dunham.
H. S. Martin vs. J. B. Chase.
H. P. Pudnee vs. P. W. Goodne.
C. B. Davis vs. W. C. Chick.
J. G. Burr vs. F. Ouimet.
J. G. Anderson vs. V. S. Lawrence.
H. A. Roark vs. R. Ouimet.
K. S. Stone vs. H. K. Wilder.
R. B. Gorton vs. G. H. Lyall.
R. B. Paton vs. R. Lyons.
C. M. Hart vs. W. K. Cady.
B. W. Estabrook vs. R. D. Pierce.
F. H. Hoyt vs. W. E. Stiles.

Being the only player able to negotiate the Brae-Burn with ease in medal play yesterday, Francis Ouimet, national amateur golf champion, should run down to the finals unless those who survived show a considerable improved form over their work yesterday.

There were a few exceptions, notable among whom were R. D. Gorton and P. W. Whittemore, with an 80, and H. K. LeBaron with 82.

While the calibre of golf was not up to championship tourney standard, it is expected that the best players become more familiar with the difficult course they will turn in better cards.

The return trip of W. C. Chick of Brae-Burn is worthy of note. This player went out in 45 and came home with a handsome 37.

The first round started at 9:45 this morning with fourteen pairs qualifying.

Ouimet starts with A. E. Burr of Brae-Burn as his opponent. R. K. Gorton is pairing with S. H. Lyall. Other good matches to follow today are Whittemore and Claffin, Anderson and Lawrence, Wilder and Stone and Hylan and Lehane.

St. Ives, Marathon Star, to Make Debut as Bike Rider Here

Henri St. Ives, the great French marathon runner, motor cycle racer, auto speeder and aviator, will make his debut as a bike rider in a four-cornered one-hour motor-paced race at the Revere Cycle track Saturday night, in which Leon Didier, the French champion, Jimmy Moran and Percy Lawrence will be the other competitors.

St. Ives has been practicing his new venture at the beach oval since early Spring. He has mastered all of the fine points of the game and is now able to follow pace surprisingly well.

Manager Butler is now planning a tandem race between the Rollin brothers of Everett and the Travilla Brothers of Revere as a second big feature for Saturday night.

The regular list of amateur and professional events will go to make up the program.

Ball Player Heat Victim.

PITCHBURG, July 16.—George Spires, third baseman on the Pittsburg New England League team, received a sun stroke while playing against Lowell. He was attended by a physician, who said that his case was not serious. It was stated that he will be out of the game for a few days.

JOHNSON AGREED TO FAKE BOUT WITH MORAN

Special Cable to the Boston American.

LONDON, July 16.—One of the things around the town is fight-mad everything today what it terms a "fixing handshell"—an expose of Johnson's alleged attempt to frame a fake fight with Moran.

June 27, 1914.

I hereby agree to divide the receipts of my contest with Frank Moran on June 27 on a basis of 60 per cent. to Moran and 40 per cent. to me, provided Frank Moran loses inside of eight rounds.

Signed JACK JOHNSON.

After the fight he must return this receipt.

Johnson, to the account of the newspaper leading up to the drawing of the agreement, Johnson first insisted upon getting 50 per cent. of the gate, which Vienne, the promoter of the match, allowed him. Others, Vienne receiving the remaining third.

MCKETRICK'S STATEMENT.

Jim McKetrick, Moran's manager, states in an article that Johnson came to his office and offered Moran a fake.

McKetrick justifies his agreeing to the ruse on the ground that the end justified the means and he was willing to do anything to get Johnson into the ring.

In support of his contention that Johnson is a crook and should never again be allowed to fight, the paper publishes what it says are excerpts from letters written by Johnson to McKetrick two days before the fight and after McKetrick, possessing the agreement, was trying to avoid the negro.

One of these excerpts is as follows:

"Now, Dan, I must see you to get things straightened out. I'm going to have things O. K. before I put on the gloves."

The story has caused a sensation here but the least astonishing outcome of the publication came in the Savoy bar, where a well known American sportsman confided to the AMERICAN correspondent a no less amazing disclosure concerning the fight in Paris.

PLAN TO DOUBLE CROSS.

According to the informant, there were four full laid plan to double-cross Johnson so he couldn't possibly win and only the fact that Carpentier developed cold feet, according to the man who was on the inside caused the plan to fall through.

To begin with, the schemers knew Carpentier was perfectly willing to meet Moran in a championship contest—which would be easy if Moran won the championship. This was the scheme's first and most important link.

In addition, however, a cash offer was made to Carpentier in his capacity as referee of $2,500 if he would agree to do one of three things:

1—To award Moran the decision if Moran lasted twenty rounds, and if Johnson hadn't punished him to such an extent as to make such a decision impossible.

2—To call the fight a draw if Moran was so hopelessly beaten that nothing else could be done.

3—To declare Moran the winner on a foul if Johnson violated the French federation rules of hitting on the breakaway.

This last was considered by the schemers the best chance, Johnson having signed articles of agreement without knowing a word in them, the agreement having been written in French.

EVERS' INJURY HARD BLOW TO BRAVES TEAM

CINCINNATI, July 16.—The Braves are here today for a four-game series against the Reds. The Boston boys then hike for Pittsburgh, after which they beat it for home pastures, and Stallings is more than hopeful that he will be out of the subway position before he returns home.

The Boston team is somewhat crippled with Johnny Evers out, and this may check the rapid rise of George Stallings' game ball club.

Evers was absent yesterday when the Braves lost to the Cardinals, a defeat that would have been a victory for the Hub, entry had Jawn been stationed at his customary position.

The injury to Evers may keep him out of the game for several days, may be longer. In the seventh inning of Monday's game against the Cards, Johnny tried to catch Cruise off second base.

The husky runner, in sliding into the bag, scraped his spikes along Trojan Jawn's ankle and peeled off considerable skin. He was in the game Tuesday, but the member started to swell and, upon advice from a local physician, Evers did not don his uniform.

Mackmen Unfurl the Pennant Flag

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 16.—While a heavy thunder storm interfered with the double-header between the Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Browns the local management decided to pull off the stunt of raising the emblem which gives the local team the title of champions of the world.

The husky runner, in sliding into the bag, scraped his spikes along Trojan Jawn's ankle and peeled off considerable skin. He was in the game Tuesday, but the member started to swell and, upon advice from a local physician, Evers did not don his uniform.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

"DUTCH" BOLD, THE FIRST BASEMAN recruit of the St. Louis Browns, who broke an ankle early in the season, has been notified by Manager Rowland that he has recovered so well that he will be given a chance to get into a game. Bold, Roger Bresnahan and Hal Janvrin were the three players secured by the Browns during the winter.

• • •

COMMENT IN FEDERAL LEAGUE circles is that Ira Anderson, the Brooklyn York lawyer who is one of the league's financial backers, is falling off. He is compared with Ty Cobb by Federal League followers, who formerly played in the New York state league.

• • •

BOY WONDER, THE CLEVELAND NATIONS recruit who was purchased from Lincoln of the Nebraska state league, has been a sensation in the last two weeks. Boy Hasn't been batting against Nebraska pitchers, but against the best in the Missouri Valley league, which has refused to yield to outfield baseball.

• • •

WHILE MANAGER HUGGINS HAS BEEN getting nothing but out of his Cardinals, the team has been performing in record breaking fashion. Only yesterday, in Pittsburgh, Huggins, in a baseball game, found it necessary to administer a general reduction.

• • •

THE CINCINNATI REDS, WHO NEVER had a world's championship outfield look out for the Boston Braves, have been playing in the outfield of late. Gavy Herrmann, president of the club, has been in the outfield for a week, and Manager Clark Griffith has been playing there for a month. Both are members of the Virginia League.

• • •

MANAGER ROBINSON OF THE BROOKlyn team has not decided whether to keep Wilhoit or Meyers behind the bat next year. Wilhoit is an old favorite, but Meyers, who was obtained from the Boston Braves, is a youngster. The latter is therefore in the field for next year's berth behind the bat, while Wilhoit will be used as a pinch hitter.

• • •

• • •

ARTHUR DEVLIN, THE FORMER BRAVES infielder, who is now with the Giants, has proved a valuable man to have around the New York team. He can play anywhere in the infield and can bat.

• • •

THE CINCINNATI REDS HAVE STILL another outfielder in Wilhoit, who will be given a chance next season. Wilhoit is a left handed batter and has not been with the Reds this season.

• • •

A NEW YORK PAPER SAYS THAT UMpire Dineen is going to retire from baseball. Dineen is a former Boston boy and has been working around here for a number of years.

• • •

JIMMY ARCHER, CHICAGO CATCHER, is making the most of his opportunities and is batting in the .300 class. Archer is a brought up in the Boston sandlots and is a graduate of the Boston diamonds.

• • •

SHIPPING NEW CONTINUES TO SHOW up well in the Central league, a member of the Rockford team batting for a .400 average. Rockford has been leading the league for the greater part of the season, and Outfielder Shipping is one of the players who has helped Manager Lee Tannehill's team to the front.

BRAVES IN CINCINNATI OPEN SERIES MINUS EVERS, BUT TEAM IS OUT TO WIN

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

FIGHTING TIGERS, JENNINGS, COBB AND CRAWFORD HERE FOR BATTLES AGAINST SOX

SOX AND TIGERS BATTLE

By NICK FLATLEY.

The Tigers, Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford and all the other stars of the screamy second-place team, open up at Fenway Park, Boston, today, and the present series of the last five seasons will be on when the ball starts percolating over the home plate.

Yesterday the Red Sox, by winning their fifth straight game and making a clean sweep of the Cleveland series, gained another half game on the Bells.

Today they open just three and a half games behind the league-leading Athletics and with the Cleveland team they have a chance to leap into a second place tie, provided the Athletics' scrap with the Yanks does not elope another Senators.

Here is the list as far refused as it stands, either. The Detroit veterans, Frank and Hooker, have had a great chance to help out some and have won the Mack outfit for three days.

The Clevelanders, last place and all, have also had the chance to help the Capital shoemen.

Last time the two clubs clashed the Westerners annexed in three out of four; despite the fact that the Senators were leading and the Naps at the bottom.

NAPS DUE TO WIN.

Further, the Clevelanders have not four in a row here in Boston and are certainly due to win a game.

With the exception of one short day, a few weeks back, the Red Sox are nearer the pennant at this particular moment than they have been all season.

All their stars are in fine form, and they lug a couple of pretty well-seasoned pen outlets ready to bust into any brushes that may be opened by the heavy batteries of the Detroit tribe.

One full game back of second half a game from third, and playing on the homestead, the Carrigana have the chance of a lifetime. The same has been put forth frequently in the past week or two and has always been rejected, but just now it is the absolutely a matter of fact than ever it has been.

The next four days should help untangle a little at least the wonderful American League race. Here's the way the teams have it out:

Tigers against the Red Sox.
Athletics against the White Sox.
Yanks against the Browns.
Naps against the Senators.

Any team in the entire eight will be lucky to get better than .500 even break. The Red Sox have always rallied wonderfully in these series when Detroiters were the visitors.

The White Sox pitchers are surely going well enough to stage the most serious athletic bats. The Naps have had the Senatorial goat, while both Yanks and Browns are in tough position for anybody.

The click of the turnstiles is sure to be heard out in the Back Bay Park when there was no chance to get into the last two baseball league clashes have drawn great throngs.

The opportunity to compare Tris Speaker and the wonderful Cobb has been a great drawing card. The intense rivalry between the two teams has been important.

PLENTY OF EXCITEMENT.

No matter what the standing the Red Sox have always come to life when Tris Jennings launches into the port. With the race in its present heart breaking shape there is plenty of chance for excitement.

What's more, the arrival of a team in the race—every one of the eight—is sure to bring the crowds out. The Red Sox have won back the entire confidence in their ability and they have been fielding like old machines and have been hitting out the ball when safe bunge counted.

The opposition, outside the pitching, was left way in the rear by the fielding of the Tigers will probably be fireworks.

The fans are in the same frame of mind as the victims at a tournament.

They don't care to look on contested while the local hero is the favorite of commonplace. They are not likely to take notice when the finest kind of soup and fish league comes to bat with the largest score.

SOX READY FOR TIGERS.

The Clevelands were good to practice on. The Tigers will be next game. Aside from the local interest, the general drawing strength of the league has stirred up the interest in baseball over and the interest about 999 out of a thousand followers of the game—when somebody can provide the stimulation.

The first six teams stood this after yesterday's games had been played:

	W.	L.	Behind Leader.
Athletics	45	37
Detroit	45	37	2½ games
Washington	43	36	3 games
Chicago	43	38	3½ games
Boston	44	38	3½ games
St. Louis	42	38	4½ games

Nothing can be observed, the general complexion of affairs suggests rather hectic mixup before the straightening out.

Regarding the final Sox fray today, the chances are that Joe Wood will be in the box. He has been anxious for some time to get a chance to pitch against the club that Carrigan decided to save him for harder game.

Resilient hustler who has not been worked safe on a season artist for more than a week now. Hooker Johnson are both in good shape and Joseph Boss any week in the army.

The pennant fever has not yet experienced to his league hurdum of fire, or, further, Chandler, magnetic of the Athletics, would have already showed the world in general that the Sox were the real goat fodder to be summoned. Carrigan sure has plenty of good-looking but material hanging around the Fenway dugout.

The Tigers have had so much rest lately, because of rain, that almost any of their staff heroes are ready to go in and slaughter.

No matter who is selected, there is sure to be plenty doing to baseball circles hereabouts for the next few days.

"I'LL KNOCK HIM OUT"--Smith

By GUNBOAT SMITH.

Although I am not underestimating Carpentier's skill and punching ability, I am confident that I will be able to knock him out. I believe I can stand more punishment than he can, and I am going to go a furious pace during the first ten rounds to wear him down. I will then be able to get home with my right and finish him. I am in the best physical condition of my life.

"I'LL WIN SURE"--Carpentier

By GEORGES CARPENTIER.

I am going to start at the first tap of the gong and set a pace which I believe will lead to a knockout. They have said that I cannot take punishment, but I will prove that I can. I was never in better condition in my life and I feel absolutely sure that I will win. Then I am out to beat Jack Johnson.

BUCKLEY BETS $5,000 THAT 'GUNBOAT' WILL WIN IN BIG TUSSLE

LONDON, July 16—"Jim" Buckley, manager of Gunboat Smith, bluffed a talkative Frenchman into making a $5,000 bet on Carpentier at even money, even but $5,000 Buckley piped up that the "Parisian Adonis" at the time.

The wager was the outcome of an argument between Buckley and some friends of the French champion. The merits of the contestants in the big bout today were being discussed in a very friendly manner when one of the Frenchmen got excited and said something about Carpentier being sure to win with a knockout and that the French idol would prove that there never had been an American to his class as a fighter.

At some length Buckley asked the admirer of Carpentier if he had any money with which he was willing to back his opinion, and when the Frenchman said he would take a wager for $5,000 Buckley piped up that England notes for that amount and dared the other to cover with. The Frenchman did not agree that sum with him, but he went got the cash with a note posted in the hands of a stakeholder.

Buckley acknowledged that he was looking for a chance to get some money down on the Gunboat, and that he had a few more dollars to wager the same way. The New Yorker looks on the fight as already won by the American.

YANKEE JACKIES ARE BACKING GUNBOAT' TO WIN BOUT TONIGHT

LONDON, July 16—Among the wildest friends of "Gunboat" Smith, as far as their purses allow, are the "bluejackets" from the United States battleship Missouri, now at Gravesend. Two days ago they signaled to "Yanks from the Missouri and gave her to be shown."

They to the Olympia tonight in a body, yelling for Smith and backing him to the limit. Smith, having a long navy, makes him in their number, invincible.

NEW YORK, July 16—A heavy fog caused the postponement of the big 5 mile motorboat race at Brighton Beach. The event was held before the fog thickened.

Prices as high at $100 and $125 each were paid today for best seats by the rich sporting men, especially those of Hindu blood, who throw guineas about like a navvy with his "tuppence."

Dick Roxe, promoter of the fight, estimated that the seat sale will amount to $200,000. That is record for home will set in straight gate money. But to this figure must be added the scores that seats have put on for their own sales, so that the actual receipts will be a gentle to see the American and Frenchman battle for the white belt will be nearer certainly over the $250,000 mark.

Society preparations for the fight began long before the actual bout itself. Carpentier and Smith are credited to entertain the Olympia ring at 9:30 this evening. This will be the last event before the fight, the only contingent which will be present must first attend its fight dinners.

SOCIETY FIGHT DINNERS.

The fight dinner is a new wrinkle for the Londoner. As soon as women began planning to be present at fights they went over "fight dinners," to be given prior to the fights, the ultimate aim to be given by the score in private mansions or at the more exclusive restaurants, with the gentle adjourne to the Olympia in comfortable time for the main event.

There have been yachting dinners, and cricket dinners, and quite a few dinners, and dinners before and after all sorts of sporting, literary and society functions. But the fight dinner is the latest, and it has taken the Carpentier-Smith match to bring it into existence.

The crowning incident of society interest is the acknowledgment from Paris of the receipt of an invitation from Dick Burge to occupy a box at the Olympia. His Majesty's foreign office, the royal Olympia and the invitation, but not committing His Majesty either to acceptance or rejection. The fact that the invitation was acknowledged was hailed as a practical admission that the King is openly interested.

The news leaked out this noon that a cargoload of the royal Olympia had been received by a member of the royal family, who will witness the fight incognito, with a number of titled friends present.

The list of his nobility which has obtained reservations for the fight grows hourly. Among those who will be present are the Grand Duke Michael of Russia, Lord Londsdale, Lord Abercrombie, Lord Rubbledale, Lord Faber, Lord Vivian, Lord Lucan, the Marquis of Litchfield, Earl Louth, Lord Fitzwilliam, Honorable Walter Maxwell, Lord Curzon, Lord Dalmeny, Earl Denbeigh—who has a tremendous friendship for Americans since his first visit there with the Honourable Artillery Company—and his son, Viscount Fielding.

Every sporting man in the land who makes any claims to distinction either has his seat reserved for the bout or is moving heaven and earth to get one.

$200,000 IN BETS.

The stage will be heavily represented in both masculine and feminine starts. Music Hall managers, who are daughters of the nobility, cannot get away to see the bout, are distributing their complimentary list starts to have the bills for tonight arranged expressly for this favorite or that to be at the Olympia from 9 o'clock to 11.

ting"—the big recorded wagers of the professional sporting men—is estimated to amount to $200,000. But thousands of dollars have been bet beyond this in the clubs.

Some wagers were made at even money. Others indicated the Frenchman to be a slight favorite. The first odds of 8 to 5 on Carpentier have been hammered down until the Frenchman's supporters finally got to asking for even money.

Both fighters spent the day quietly. Carpentier resting at the Metropolitan Hotel and Smith at his quarters in Harrow on the outskirts of the city. Neither of the men showed any signs of nervousness and both were confident. As other fighter has ever seen the other in action each had to get his information about the others methods and appearance through some outside agency. Boxers familiar with Carpentier's manner of fighting have been interviewed by Smith, and on the other hand those who have seen Smith at work have been sought out by the French fighter.

Carpentier says:

I am going to start at the first tap of the gong and set a pace which I believe will lead to a knockout. They have said that I cannot take punishment, but I will prove that I can. I never was in better condition in my life and I feel absolutely sure that I can win. Then I am out to beat Jack Johnson.

Gunboat Smith made this statement at his camp:

Although I am not underestimating Carpentier's skill and punching ability, I am confident that I will be able to knock him out. I believe that I can stand more punishment than he can. I am going to a furious pace during the first ten rounds to wear him down. I will then be able to get home with my right and finish him. I am in the best physical condition of my life.

There is sure to be enough action to please the most captious fight fan, and Georges has never run away from an open Smith at work have been sought opponent and he can take his grief. He is as dangerous at in fighting as he is at long range. He resents the criticism that he cannot take punishment. He is a scientific boxer and is quicker with hand and foot than the American.

On the other hand Smith is heavier and has a longer reach. His punch is harder than Carpentier's.

LIKE KICK OF MULE.

The Gunboat is aggressive and a blow from his right is like the kick of a mule. He lacks the skill of Carpentier and cannot protect himself as well as the French boxer. He is less quick on his feet than the agile Georges, too.

A big contingent of Frenchmen and Frenchwomen came from Paris and other French cities to see the fight. The French colony in London as well as the American colony will turn out for the fray.

Most of the American tourists in England will attend the fight and other Americans came here from the continent to cheer for Smith.

Among those who will see the battle is Jack Johnson, the negro heavyweight champion of the world. Johnson favors the American and has left upon him. Carpentier, in a statement, said he will go after Johnson if he defeats Smith. The Frenchman already has an agreement with Johnson to fight in the Fall.

A unique feature of the contest is the fact that two judges have been selected to assist Referee Corl in determining the winner on points if the fight goes the twenty rounds.

The battle is scheduled to begin after two preliminaries have been staged. The doors of the stadium will open at 6 o'clock and elaborate police precautions have been taken to prevent disorder and to protect the men and women spectators from raids of pickpockets.

Smith will enter the ring weighing about 182 pounds, while Carpentier is expected to flip the beam at 176 when he hops over the ropes. In Smith's corner will be Jim Buckley, his manager; George McDonald, Mike Mann and Bob Armstrong. Seconding Carpentier will be Des Camps, his manager; Ledoux Petitis and Frank Galvin, a former six-day bicycle rider.

Smith will get $75,000 if he wins and $10,000 if he loses. Carpentier gets $20,000, win, lose or draw.

Carpentier was born at Lens, France, on January 12, 1894. Less than four years ago he was boxing in the 112-pound class. Today he stands six feet one inch and weighs 180 pounds. He is a fast fighter and clever boxer. He is equally good at longe range and infighting. He can take punishment and in many respects is more like an American than any other man in Europe.

Carpentier has been boxing seven years, although he is not yet twenty-one years of age. This means that he began to take part in battles in the ring when he was thirteen. Smith began to fight as a professional in 1905. He began his experience in the ring when twenty years old. He is now twenty-six.

Both men are in the full glow of early manhood. They possess also the four essentials of successful pugilists—youth, strength, virility and the "wallop."

Read the detailed description of the Smith-Carpentier bout in the Boston AMERICAN Sport Extra tonight. Issued right after the battle.

He took Bombardier Wells on two different occasions and flattened the Indian both times. He is by no means a one-punch boxer, but he is one of the most powerful.

He is a very clever boxer and with age and the loss of weight will undoubtedly be a hard proposition for the cream of the heavyweight class to get by. Gunboat, as a matter of fact, is very fond of the game and is quite a student of boxing. He told the writer a few weeks ago that this young Frenchman was a clever man, a fellow who could hand it out and hit, and was not afraid to hold and clinch. What more can one say of a fighter?

Gunboat Smith is not a Jim Corbett with his dukes. He is a terrific hitter, but lacks class, speed and footwork. As a matter of fact, they don't amount to much in a big fight. If he can hit he's a winner. Fight lovers want to see a hitter. They don't care whether he falls over himself or not. Just as

The Biggest Proof That a Man Doesn't Know Much Is When He Insists That He Knows Himself

The First Instalment of a Remarkable New Serial by the Author of "The Two Sisters."

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER I.

THE two men faced each other. One was tall and rather plain of feature; the other, his junior by two years, was shorter and handsome. Perhaps the smaller man's eyes were not as steady as those of his companion. But many women prefer dark eyes to blue ones—and Ralp Morton had black ones. His tall, plain cousin, Tom Morton, was less popular with women than was he.

"Tell me what scrape you are in, Ralph," counselled Tom. "It's better, you know, to tell me the whole truth if there is any way in which I can be of use to you."

It was what he had often said to this care-free cousin when they had been boys at school, and later at college, when he was a junior and Ralph was a happy-go-lucky, heedless freshman. But now they were men—and Ralph Morton was again in trouble.

He told his story—excusing himself frequently as he went along. It had been a foolish mistake, he said—an affair in which he had borrowed a little money he happened to need from a woman—a friend of his.

Tom started with a smothered exclamation, then controlled himself, but there was almost a menace in the voice with which he demanded—

"You borrowed money from a woman?"

Ralph avoided his stern gaze as he hurried on. "There was nothing so bad in it, after all, he averred. He and the woman—Mrs. Evelyn Price—were good friends. Surely Tom had heard him speak of her?—the Prices, he might remember, lived in Baltimore.

Yes, Tom remembered. "Go on," he said. "Please stick to your story."

With a murmur of impatience, Ralph continued. He had often played cards with Mrs. Price and had often spent the evening at her house. She was rather gay and very lolly, and not a bit too straight-laced to play cards herself for money—so she could not blame any man who did the same.

LOST MOTHER'S MONEY

Her husband, by the way, was a rich chap—but a mere business machine. It so happened that several nights ago he (Ralph) had been playing with some men in Baltimore and had lost a lot of money. It was not exactly his, by the way, but some with which he was to meet interest on a mortgage of his mother's. In fact she had sent him to Baltimore to pay it on a house she owned there—a house that had been her father's—and to see about having some repairs done on the building itself.

He had not expected to lose at poker night before last. But he had lost. His mother had written the man to whom she owned the money that it would be in his hands yesterday.

"So you see I had to have it," Ralph declared. "I went to the Prices and talked the matter over with Mrs. Price. Her husband was not in. His wife said she was glad he wasn't, for he was in very bad humor. Somehow lately she has managed to get in wrong with him. She suggested that I let her lend me the money. I simply had to have it, so I borrowed it. That's all."

He paused awkwardly.

"And then?" asked Tom Morton.

"Why, I paid the interest on the mortgage on mother's property, of course," he said. From this statement one would fancy that there was positive virtue in his having done this.

"And then?" Tom said again.

"I don't mean to," Tom protested, "only if I am to help you, or you have asked me to do, I must know the facts."

"Oh, I suppose so," the other assented, still in an aggrieved tone. "Well, then, I didn't come to it. It's that everything's against me. In the first place, here at 7 o'clock this morning came a telegram delivery letter from mother asking me to come home at once. She's not feeling so well, she said, and one of the sons wants got into a drunken row and she's afraid to stay out at Homewood alone, and a lot of other things. So unless I would have her suspect that something's wrong I've got to go out there tonight. That's why I came on to New York immediately—to get to her, but first to see you. For—well, Tom—I've got to pay that money back."

BELONGED TO HUSBAND

"It seems it was Price's, not his wife's. He's a jealous old fool, and he's asked his wife what she did with the check. You see, it was Mrs. Evans' wages—and he had handed it to her to pay them with. One of the maids, or the butler, or some one, asked him for some money yesterday—and then he learned that this particular check of it had not yet been paid yet, and he raised ne end of a row.

"His wife sent for me in all kinds of a scare. She's promised her husband that she shall have the cash tomorrow morning. She made him think that she had lent it to her sister. Her sister's going on from Philadelphia this afternoon to make her a visit—and well, the money's got to be there."

"I see" said Tom Morton slowly. "I am sure that there was something more to learn.

"You say," he questioned, "that Mrs. Price's husband is jealous of you, by any chance jealous of you, Ralph?"

Ralph laughed embarrassedly. "Well, yes, I guess he is," he acknowledged. "You see, he's away from home quite a bit, and he doesn't know me well, and I've been about with his wife a good deal, and he's heard of it, and he's peeved, and if he thinks that she lent me the money—why—oh, well, you know how it will be!"

"And you want me to lend you the money?"

"Why, yes—I would like it, Tom—if you can"——

"Certainly!" the other cut him short. "But how will you get it to her on time? You see"—with a glance at the clock—"It's after four now—and you say the money must be in her hands tomorrow forenoon."

"I thought perhaps you could get away just now easier than I could," the younger man hurried on to explain. "You see, there's mother wanting me and"——

FOND OF RALPH

He paused and his cousin answered quickly. "Yes, yes, I see," he assented. He had always loved Ralph. There was little that he would not do for him. From childhood the older cousin had stood between the younger one and trouble. Ralph was a lovable fellow, he now mused. His father had died when he was a mere child, and his mother had depended upon him for companionship and for much that the boy did not really possess in the way of understanding sympathy. But mothers' eyes are blinded by affection. All these things passed through Tom Morton's mind as he paused before uttering his next sentence.

"I will lend you the money, Ralph," he said at last. "But could you not telegraph it on to Mrs. Price?"

"Lord, no!" exclaimed Ralph. "Her husband would, perhaps, learn of it—and there would be a row. The only thing would be for you to call and give it to her in person—or at least hand her your check, which she could deposit and get the cash from the bank. You could do that, Tom, I'm sure."

"Yes," replied the other, thoughtfully, "I could arrange it, of course. I must telephone out to Homewood that I cannot be there tonight. You see—he paused, flushing boyishly.

"Yes, I know," Ralph finished his unspoken thought. "Edith's expecting you to dinner, isn't she? I'm sorry to interfere with your scheme, but I'll see her, old chap, as soon as I get there and trump up some sort of a story to tell her."

He, too, blushed, but his cousin looked at him without assurance.

"Thanks," he said gravely; "but I will phone her that business calls me out of town."

He would not let himself remember that Edith had promised to talk to right with him about certain plans dear to both of them. Surely she would understand. Yet only last evening she had reproached him with being so much less enthusiastic than his younger cousin, Ralph.

"Ralph is always so generous and so enthusiastic about everything," she had said with a little laugh. "It would be a delight to do such a man as that make love to one."

MADE UNCOMFORTABLE

The words had been spoken in jest, but they had made him vaguely uncomfortable.

He waited that Edith would not see such things—yet did then she grove what an innocent child she was? And did she not love her better than all the world besides? Would he blame her if she resented his absence tonight? And tomorrow evening his mother was giving a dinner to them both—an engagement dinner she called it, a rather elaborate affair in her pretty home in the fashionable suburb where she and Tom Morton made their home. At that dinner Edith Hale's and Tom Morton's betrothal was to be announced.

"I only thought," Ralph was saying—and Tom roused himself with an effort from his revery—"that if Edith expected you tonight she might be a little lonely if you did not come. After I have dined with mother and quieted her apprehensions I will run over and cheer Edith up a bit—if you would only let me do that."

"Thanks," replied Ralph, "that will be kind of you."

"If she has other callers, I can talk to Constance, you know," Ralph added. "Connie's a good sort—even if she is Edith's poor cousin and such a sober little thing."

"She is a fine woman," returned Tom. And, remembering her presence, he felt a sudden access of security. Constance, the orphaned cousin, had come home with Edith Hale and her parents, was his very good friend. She would calm Edith, if Edith were feeling hurt with regard to his absence. But of course Edith would not blame him. Did she not love him, and were they not engaged to be married?

To Be Continued.

Sweet Innocence

She sailed into the telegraph office and rapped on the counter. The clerk remembered that she had been there about ten minutes before or he came from Edward Rowland and he wondered what she wanted this time.

"Oh," she said, "let me have that telegram I wrote just now. I discovered something very important. I wanted to underscore 'perfectly lovely' in acknowledging the receipt of that note, so that it will be anything extra?"

"Oh, ma'am," said the clerk, as he handed her the message.

The young lady drew two heavy lines beneath the words and said:

"It's awfully good of you to let me do that. It will please Arthur ever so much."

"Didn't I mention it," said the clerk. "If you would like it, I will put a few drops of violet extract on the telegram at the same rate."

"Oh, thank you, sir! You don't know how much I would appreciate it. I'm going to send all my telegrams through this office. You are so obliging."

And the smile she gave him would have done any one good, with the possible exception of Arthur.

IF some day—some glittering, blue day when the big beaten-cream clouds are drifting across the bowl of the sky—the wind is right and the bay-water is snapping away in a gay tumult of bluing and suds, when you're foaming before the wind, your little boat lifting herself along like a flying fish, the sun on the hair of the girl who's just your best chum—your heart and love still thumping steady in your chest fancy-free all serene—you look off idly on your starboard bow buried in slapping, chattering water, and you see a frantic, wet, golden head a-bobbing up and down, DON'T come about and pull him in by a toe. Pass him up—sail right by him like a wicked black pirate would do—turn your face the other way. The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"I NEVER knew till I was looking at a black number of a paper up at the house last night," said the Manicure Lady, "that there was a lot of ladies attended the prize fight between Morton and that big coon fellow—I can't think of his name."

"Yes, there was quite a few titled ladies there, so the papers said," replied the Head Barber. "They must have been hard up for something to watch. They ought to be ashamed of themselves."

"It's the last place in the world I would want to be or to be seen," declared the Manicure Lady, "and I don't claim to be no titled lady, either. It makes me sick to think of it. The paper I saw said that among them present was Elinor Glyn, the lady who writes them pure, beautiful, tender, modest stories like "Three Weeks." I wasn't so much surprised to read that she was there, though I don't see how she could get material for a new novel, the kind she writes, out of everyday affair like a slugging match. And the paper said that the nobility was also represented. I don't know what this world is coming to, George. I guess mother and me and Mayme are getting too old fashioned, though goodness knows I always thought since I got into this business that I was pretty well abreast of the times. Mayme said that if she was a Paris chief of police she would arrest every woman who went to that fight on a charge of disorderly conduct.

"All of us up at the house think the same way except Wilfred, who is always a little multisi-sayway and likes to hear himself argue. He said he thought it was all right for them women to go if they wanted to.

"He don't know what he is talking about," said the Head Barber, "If my wife ever went to a prize fight I would run away to sea and never see her no more."

"Wilfred says that it is perfectly natural for brilliant women, especially women that write, to see novelties of all kinds, and he says that it is natural for women to admire strong, active men. I guess he has come to the conclusion because so few women look off idly on your starboard bow buried in slapping, chattering water, and you see a frantic, wet, golden head a-bobbing up and down, DON'T come about and pull him in by a toe. Pass him up—sail right by him like a wicked black pirate would do—turn your face the other way. Strangle your pity and don't haul him aboard!

Little Mary's Essays

By DOROTHY DIX

(BOYS)

By DOROTHY DIX

BOYS is horrid little beasts that pulls your hair, and spits through their teeth, and is little snaix, and flies for the Lord created them for some good purpose, only nobody don't know what it is.

Boys is made of dirt, and holler. They sounds like they was close kin to a ortermobile horn, and they is ways look dirty only except when they are on their way to Sunday school, and their mamas has just washed them up, and then look miserable.

A boy has two hands and two arms, one at each corner, which he uses continually. Also he has a mouth that never gets any rest, because when he ain't stuffin' something in it he's always letting a lot of sound out of it. He also has a head which he usses to stand on.

Also, a boy has pockets in which he keeps pieces of twine, and nails, and chewing gum, and candy, and marbles, and pencils, and dried fish with which you can make anybody's prize Angora cat follow you.

Boys can also throw balls. I know a boy that has broken the plate glass window of the drug store on our corner four times with his ball, and what the drug store man said to him was perfectly orful. Also the boy's father had to pay for the window. I expect that boy will grow up and be a Red Sox when he is big.

Boys are not nice, and sweet, and ladylike unless they are named Percy, and their mother is a widow, and they live in a Department Hotel, and she dresses them up like the little boys in books.

When boys are little they don't like to kiss you, and it makes them mad when their mammas says to them: Now, Georgie, be nice and play with the little girl." But when they grow up and get big, they just beg you to kiss them, and you won't do it, and you make them spend all their money taking you to places, and buying you chocolate creams. I do not know why boys are so different when they are little and when they are big, but they do.

Boys is stronger than girls is, and they can run faster. Also when they grow up they can be the Father of their Country, which a little girl cannot do.

Washington was once a little boy, and he couldn't tell a lie. I have never seen a little boy like Washington, for all the little boys I know tell whoppers when their mammas ask them who eat up the cookies.

My Aunt Susie, that is a beautiful young lady with 3 beaus that come to see her and take her to the theatre, and send her candy, says that from the time a boy is too big to sit on your lap until the time he is big enough for you to sit on his lap that he ought to be kept in a barrel, and fed through the bunghole.

That is all I know about Boys.

Do You Know That—

The largest dairy farm in the world is in Canada, comprising 10,000 acres, and is, though considerably a suburb of Winnipeg, when completely stocked the farm will contain 2,500 head of cattle within its fences. With 1,500 of these giving milk, the total yearly output of milk and cream is expected to be about 3,000,000 gallons.

For "placing an obstacle on the rail, thereby causing a train to stop," a peasant of Nijni Novgorod was recently fined. He was trying to commit suicide, and the "obstacle" was his own head.

The Imperator on a recent trip brought safely across the Atlantic 4,384 persons—the largest human cargo ever carried by any sea-going vessel. Of these 3,634 were passengers and 1,352 were crew.

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish

(Modes of Paris)

A harmless, yet very effective, treatment is here given for the quick removal of hairy growth: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the undesirable hairs, apply paste and after 2 or 3 minutes remove, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. One application usually is sufficient, but to be certain of results, buy the delatone in an original package.—ADVERTISEMENT.

How to Be Beautiful

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

"I WANT to be beautiful! Oh, I want to be beautiful!" writes Inez. "I want the man I care for to love me always. Can you tell me how to make myself so beautiful that he will always care, or is this too hard?"

My dear girl—this is easy for me. I can tell you just how to be beautiful. But you will have to work hard to attain true beauty.

Eternal vigilance is the price of beauty. Laziness, gluttony, temper, stubbornness, and all the dear indulgences of feminine nature must be sacrificed once and for all if you want to be a beauty.

Are you willing to work unceasingly? Are you willing to be forever climbing a long, steep hill? Are you energetic, ambitious and determined? Well, then you may set confidently about being a beauty.

You must cultivate beauty in three departments! You must have a clean, wholesome, well developed body first of all.

To do this sacrifice sweets, sauces, gravies, condiments, hot breads and all your pet indigestibles. Drink water, a very little clear tea, skimmed, creamless tea or coffee and lemonade. Avoid liquor and all indulgences in overeating or overdrinking.

Get every bit of fresh air you can manage and take every form of brisk exercise you can afford.

Now, with your body-house in order, set sacredly about cultivating a sweet, kind, placid spirit. If you think amiable, happy thoughts, avoid temper, sulks, bitterness, brooding, envy and malice and simply make your nature a storehouse for sunshine, your face will radiate an expression of sweet loveliness. Truly, girls, a beautiful expression is in the power of every one. And a beautifully expressive face, where amiability rules, is much more lastingly attractive than an expressionless pink and white affair that may belong to a magazine cover and well as a girl.

And now you must dress in good taste. Study your color scheme. Bring out all its good points and tone down the glaring things you don't like. Just cultivate your artistic eye so you'll know instinctively that you mustn't set an orange hat atop your auburn mane and that pretty complexion or wear an anaemia gray dress if you are all vivid brown and red-ish.

Bring out your points. It will take brains to find the best way to do this. But however clever you are it is worth your while to be beautiful, too. For real beauty is made up of all the best things in the world. They are yours for the taking.

To be beautiful is to be kind and sweet and loving, to be healthy and wholesome and sane and clean, to be strong and wise and patient.

With beauty like this, dear Inez, your husband will love you always. This beauty is yours for the taking.

Will you help yourself to a full portion of it?

Pat's New Astronomy

Pat found it impossible to believe that the earth is round. In spite of the numerous arguments of an eminent astronomer.

"But, look here, Pat," said the latter, "you must see that the earth can't be anything else but round. Now, tell me where does the sun rise?"

"In the east, of course," said Pat.

"And where does it set?"

"Why, in the west."

"Well, then, how does it manage to get back in the east again by the morning—tell me that."

Pat thought hard for a minute. Then an intelligent look dawned in his eye.

"Why, of course," said he at last, "it just slips back at night!"

IN ALL OUR NEIGHBORHOOD

There Is Hardly a Woman Who Does Not Rely Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

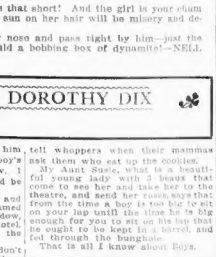
Princeton, Ill.—"I had inflammation, hard headaches in the back of my neck and a weakness all caused by female trouble, and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got excellent results that I am now feeling fine. I recommend the Compound and praise it to all. I shall be glad to have you publish my letter as I hear scarcely a neighbor around me who does not use your medicine."—Mrs. J. F. Johnson, R. No. 4, Box 30, Princeton, Illinois.

Experience of a Nurse.

Poland, N. Y.—"In my experience as a nurse I certainly think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a great medicine. I wish all women with female troubles would take it. I took it when passing through the Change of Life with great results and always recommend the Compound to all my patients if I know of their condition in time. I will gladly tell any one I can to help others to know of this great medicine."—Mrs. Horace Newman, Poland, Herkimer Co., N. Y.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills.



Mlle. Napierkowska, classic dancer of the Paris Opera-Comique, says: "The remarkably soothing effects of Savon Cadum make it the finest toilet soap I have ever used."

PROTEST AGAINST COSTLY LIGHT PLAN TO BE HEARD TODAY

WITHOUT investigation, WITHOUT consulting an electrical engineer, WITHOUT the necessary facts and without special knowledge on his part, Mayor Curley made a contract with the electric light company for lighting the streets of Boston and the public buildings which involved an expenditure of five million dollars.

He took the word of the electric light company for the cost of the electric lighting without investigation by the city when his own representative, Louis K. Rourke, admits that all the city can do is to make a "near guess."

The City Council, with great credit to itself, has so far declined to approve this contract. Today there will be another public hearing before the executive committee of the City Council on the contract where the labor men will be present, represented by John P. Feeney and Joseph B. Eastman, who so ably conducted the arbitration case for the city employes of the Elevated Railroad.

This is one of the most important concerns of the city.

The AMERICAN knows that the electric light company has been guilty of EXTORTIONATE PRACTICES toward Boston for years. It is from such rich corporations that a man who HONESTLY wants to save the city money, would insist that the city get its money's worth, by a rigid inquiry which would ascertain which WAS the city's money's worth.

Of course, Mayor Curley has not done this and the AMERICAN never expected that he would.

If every member of the City Council votes on this contract as his conscience dictates, the contract will be thrown out. THERE ARE THREE MEMBERS OF THE CITY COUNCIL WHO WERE ON RECORD AGAINST IT, BUT WHO ARE NOW REPORTED TO BE WOBBLING. IF THESE GENTLEMEN THINK THAT THEY CAN TRIPLE WITH A GRAVE SITUATION LIKE THIS WITHOUT CENSURE FROM THE PEOPLE OF BOSTON, THEY ARE MAKING A SERIOUS MISTAKE.

The AMERICAN gives, for the benefit of its readers, the following discussion of this electric lighting contract by an electrical engineer, an expert who knows his business as the Mayor does not.

What is the matter with the proposed Edison contract? This contract was condemned by the Boston Chamber of Commerce; it has been condemned by the United Improvement Association, it has been condemned by the Finance Commission. The principal objections of these three independent and impartial tribunals are as follows:

1. The five-year contract is condemned as unnecessary because no new investment of capital is called for and few if any technical changes are occurring in the electric light business which may make existing conditions of service that are acceptable today, antiquated, excessive and out of date within the next five years from now.

2. The prices for the various lights should be fixed by competition before they should be fixed by arbitration, as suggested by both Finance Commission and United Improvement Association.

A FAIR PROPOSITION.

This is an eminently fair proposition, since it admits the contrary is in a position to know its capital investment and its cost of operating, the best city engineer cannot do more than guess at it. To "go to make a big guess" is not good business for a city to do. The contractors admit its undesirability, interesting, when before small users of light they argue to rely principally upon the assurance of the seller as to what is a reasonable price for electricity, that three impartial arbitrators would be competent to fix a price for a five-year service on public offered on the self-serving estimate of the interested party. Why not, then, more naturally and easily, the Mayor and City Council himself, with the aid of a record of President Edgar and the engineers as to what is a fair price? That is the way to do business, and as between merchant and seller and the city, as a matter of business, the seller is at a decided benefit with the prospective seller, especially when contracts are let out in competition considered what is the lowest price under the bidders. The contract should be evaluated so that the prices should be fixed by competition.

CONDEMNED BY CHAMBER.

2. The contract is also condemned by the Chamber of Commerce because it has no definite ending even at the end of ten years. Five years' notice is required. The most unsatisfactory feature of the proposal is the fact that Mayor Fitzgerald does not take advantage of a similar proposition that is being made to many in force today. Which was made to the city of Boston because of numerous conflict between the clause which provides for public utilities commission and the arbitration clause.

The former clause provides that an improved type of lamp may be substituted for the one which is now in use, a smaller one for the substituted lamp than the one existing lamp. The arbitration clause provides that any reduction in the unit price of the contract may, through the action of arbitrators, result in the city's being deprived of the benefits of such reduction.

LACKS NEW LAMP PROVISIONS.

A strong objection to this contract is that it does not contain adequate provisions for the improved Magnetite lamp and the improved Tungsten lamp. As offered, the improved Tungsten lamp should be immediately substituted by the city for the present forty-watt carbon filament Tungsten lamp. The new six-hundred-candle-power lamp does not consume any more current than the present forty-watt carbon filament lamp and it should be furnished to the city at a price not to exceed the price of the present forty candle-power lamp and the contract should so provide.

The city authorities should take immediate steps to substitute improved Magnetite lamps for the present Magnetite lamps, and get the full saving that such substitution would produce. What would that saving amount to? I estimate that the price of the improved lamp when ordered by the Finance Commission. The principal objections of these three independent and impartial tribunals are as follows:

1. The five-year contract is condemned as unnecessary because no new investment of capital is called for and few if any technical changes are occurring in the electric light business which may make existing conditions of service that are acceptable today, antiquated, excessive and out of date within the next five years from now.

RIDICULOUS SITUATION.

This was such a ridiculous situation that the company voluntarily submitted under some modified form of arbitration a reduction of 317,000 per year or $6 per lamp, thus reducing for the last two years of the contract the price per lamp for the old Gilbert lamp from $124 a year to $118 a year. And yet two years afterwards, when a new contract was under consideration, the Edison Company accepted a price for the Gilbert lamp of $92. If $92 was a fair price for the Gilbert lamp in 1909 it is hard to see how $118 was a fair price in 1912. There was something radically wrong with that arbitration.

LATEST STOCK MARKETS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were still weak this afternoon and bears were confident of being able to break prices further. Bulls appeared to be few and dejected. Among declines in New York were Chesapeake & Ohio 2¾, New York Central 1¾, Missouri Pacific 1¾, Reading ¾, New Haven ¾, American Can ¾, Steel ¾, Amalgamated ¼, Northern Pacific ¼, Baltimore & Ohio 2¾, Denver & Rio Grande common 1¾ and preferred 2, Atchison Canadian Pacific 1¾, Southern Pacific ¾, American Telephone ¾, American Smelting 1 and Pacific ¾.

Boston & Maine was up ¼ in Boston, where New Haven was unchanged. American Pacific had advanced ¼, Elevated ¼ lower and United Fruit had declined ¼.

NEW HAVEN THE FEATURE.

New Haven was still the most observed issue when stock markets opened, and in New York, where it was the most active stocks yesterday, it was still under pressure. Within a few minutes it had made a new low record, selling at 49¾. But it rallied quickly and at times thereafter showed material gains. It had better support, although unsteady. Bears relaxed their efforts to drive it down when it became apparent that liquidation had slackened, if it had not ceased. In view of requirement to await the result of the directors' meeting later in the day. One rumor which helped to steady the stock yesterday was that the board would recommend that the road go into the hands of a receiver. Another was to the effect that directors would decide finally on what better to do in regard to the dissolution suit. In Boston the lowest figure touched by New Haven during the morning was 49¾.

MARKET SOON WEAKENED.

Prices averaged a little lower at the start and after becoming steadier reacted again. The volume of business was large, share transactions for the first hour totalling around 127,000. While most of the leaders declined in early trading, a few showed gains, including Union Pacific. Baltimore & Ohio still reflected the possibility of a large amount of its stock being offered in the market as the result of the Union Pacific distribution of what it has in its treasury as in the form of an extra dividend. Speculative holdings of Baltimore & Ohio consist of $50,013,765 in common and $26,764,900 preferred stock.

Canadian Pacific made a substantial gain in London, where most securities were lower than estimated it in New York. The price range was not broad anywhere. Trading was on a small working scale. It was wired from Washington that the Eastern rate case would probably be decided. One prediction is that the decision will be rendered on Saturday next, by July 18. Few if any of the followers of the market expect it to promote much of a rise, as it is generally believed that the roads will not get the increase asked for.

ACCUMULATION IN PROGRESS?

The market tone was much better during the morning than it was yesterday afternoon. There was extensive covering of shorts at times, and the report was circulated that some large interests were accumulating on declines. There was nervousness in speculative circles and a close watch was kept for signs of renewed liquidation. Pennsylvania was the weakest of Americans in trading and receded almost as much in New York. Rock Island preferred sold down to 17¾, the common touched ¾ and both lows.

By noontime the Boston list was irregular and with gains and losses averaging small. New York Central, which may be investigated by the Interstate Commerce Commission; Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio were the weakest rails in New York. Among industrials General Electric had advanced two points. Missouri, Kansas & Texas preferred sold at 32 and Steel was above the parity having previously shaded that figure.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

London copper warrants were quiet at the opening and unchanged at noon and at the close.

Union Pacific directors are expected to announce today when Baltimore & Ohio stocks will be distributed as an extra dividend.

On July 15 copper in England, France and Germany amounted to 25,851 tons, an increase of 153 in a fortnight. Visible supplies in Hamburg and Bremen amounted to 6,956 tons, a decrease of 668.

The Bank of England's minimum rate of discount remained unchanged today at 3 per cent. Its proportion of reserve to liabilities was 52.28 per cent., compared with 53.35 for the corresponding week a year ago.

Bryan Declares for Woman Suffrage

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Secretary Bryan has come out with an editorial in the Commoner announcing his support of equal suffrage. The right of women to vote in Nebraska will be determined at elections in November. "I shall ask no political rights for myself that I am not willing to grant to my wife," says Mr. Bryan. "As man and woman are coheirs of the earth, and must work out their destinies together, the presumption is on the side of equality in government and responsibility to their joint life and its opportunities."

Boston Banks Show Improving Business

As a possible indication of improving business it is interesting to note that the National Shawmut Bank in June handled 1,529,141 checks as against 1,452,750 in May, an increase of over 76,000. There were also a large number of operating days in both months, so that the daily increase was 3,456 checks, or 6 per cent.

FORBES GIVES REASONS FOR "DEPRESSION"

By B. C. FORBES.

Wall Street's eyesight is reputedly very keen. Also, Wall Street proverbially looks far ahead.

If Wall Street is seeing straight at present, prosperity is still some distance off. Several standard stocks yesterday fell to new low records, and the financial atmosphere high up is surcharged with pessimism.

* * *

Many things prompt me to regard this diagnosis of the situation:

The enormous efforts may be counted upon to hasten the return of prosperity after the November elections, which, with the recovery in anything like its normal stride, are expected to give a Republican House and a Democratic Senate, each to produce a legislative record which would give business a real spur to ten months' activity.

* * *

* * *

I can no more imagine that President Wilson will change the course of business he has accomplished during fundamental. Financiers have long been aware that he favors the United States and its business interests with all the independent backing he could give. Similarly, he has been aware that the welfare of the country's large employers of labor and capital to offer any counsel or advice of any kind, or to enter his presence and that he surrounded himself with such avowed enemies of business interests as Messrs. Bryan, McAdoo and Skelton Williams, such with his appointments to satisfy. But now, it is understood, Mr. Wilson finds he cannot rule magnificent over the nation's emergency, and hastens to win them over. His homecoming is regarded as a demonstration of weakness rather than of repentance of or statesmanship.

* * *

Many business men, therefore, are not straining themselves to work up enthusiasm to account for the Wilson administration.

* * *

I have said Wall Street can enumerate reasons aplenty for its present "depression." Were not Wall Street's own making—which enter the gloomy reckoning of the moment are greatness of the return of cheerfulness and buoyancy.

1—Expectation of a new Hawley receivership.

2—Nervousness over the Interstate Commerce Commission's unconcealed bitterness toward the railroads.

3—Fears that Paul M. Warburg may succeed W. P. G. Harding as the Federal Reserve Board and that amateurs of puny calibre will fill the vacancies created by McAdoo and Williams, men of no practical experience, in control of the currency over impending trust legislation.

4—Reports that the Interstate Commerce Commission after investigation of Chicago & Alton and New York Central.

5—Expectations that Chesapeake & Ohio's dividend will be dropped.

6—Financial troubles overhanging Missouri Pacific, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, Rock Island, Wabash, St. Louis & San Francisco, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, Western Maryland, Denver & Rio Grande, Western Pacific, International & Great Northern and other roads. Railroads with a total of one billion securities outstanding are already in bankruptcy.

7—Threatened trouble in New York Central's dividend is danger.

8—Uneasiness over maintenance of Baltimore & Ohio's dividend, disbursement in face of a deficit after making the payment.

10—Apprehension as to demand for new security issues.

11—Heavy maturities pending.

12—Hostile antagonisms in high financial circles over the disclosure of the unsound tools underlying the Hadlin method of doing business and of raising money from banks without giving adequate security for it, which to lease the granting of credit.

13—The threatened strike of Western railroad employes. (Wall Street looks for arbitration, and, as always, upon compromise.)

14—Growth of anarchistic demonstrations and W. J. Bryan.

15—Renewed selling of American investments by Europeans, who are disconcerted by the attitude assumed by the government and the Interstate Commerce Commission toward the country's own corporations.

16—Tariff after-effects.

17—Labor unrest and Mexico.

18—Business depression here, in Canada, in European countries, in Argentina, in Brazil and elsewhere.

19—Impending election turmoil.

20—Possible reductions by several stocks, including New Haven, Rock Island, Canadian Pacific, New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio, to either the lowest point in their history or the lowest in years.

These are samples of what Wall Street is finding to worry over.

* * *

For my part I had figured that a helpful rate decision would prove the signal for a substantial recovery. But if high politics are to enter into the situation, it may easily be that no great trunk-line case will occur until voters have been given opportunity to register their dissatisfaction with the way things have been going.

* * *

To me it is significant that there is a sort of conspiracy of silence among those at the top of the financial heap

"Stop Stealing, Mr. Burglar, Divide Your Loot—and Go Free"

We Do Not Say That to Little Thieves. Why Should We Say It to Big Railroad Thieves?

Copyright, 1914, by Star Company

The report of the Interstate Commerce Commission demonstrates that—

The men engaged in the management of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad were a gang of thieves and rascals of the lowest kind.

They robbed thousands of women whose entire fortune was invested in the road. And they knew that they were robbing those women.

They robbed the State and bribed officials; they robbed all of the stockholders. They gave no accounting for tens of millions of dollars. THEY OUGHT TO BE IN JAIL AT HARD LABOR, THOSE OF THEM THAT ARE STILL ALIVE. AND THE OTHERS OUGHT TO BE CONVICTED EVEN AFTER DEATH BY THE PROPER AUTHORITIES AND STIGMATIZED AS THE CRIMINALS THAT THEY WERE.

But we learn that government ingenuity represented in the present administration is eagerly devising ways "to avoid a New Haven Railroad suit."

The announcement is made semi-officially that if the directors of the railroad will divide up the property that has been so mismanaged and robbed, if they will separate the Boston & Maine Railroad from the New Haven, they may go in peace, and their stealing will be forgotten.

What a parody on justice! The truth is known about these thieves because Mellen told the truth, and the Interstate Commerce Commission confirms Mellen.

BUT MELLEN IS TO BE PROSECUTED, while the big thieves whom he exposed go free.

If he had kept his mouth shut and HELPED the thieves, there would have been no talk of prosecuting Mellen.

Suppose a collection of burglars had robbed two old ladies' houses and been caught at it. Suppose one old lady was named Miss New Haven and the other was named Miss Boston & Maine.

What would you think of a Judge who said to the burglars: "Gentlemen, this is very distressing to have you exposed in this way. We are going to prosecute and if possible imprison the man who exposed you. We want, if we possibly can, to avoid irritating you any further or causing you any more uneasiness in the matter.

"Therefore, if you will kindly divide the plunder of Miss New Haven and Miss Boston & Maine, putting the two collections of "swag" in two separate piles, we'll say no more about it and you may proceed on your way."

If a Judge talked that way to burglars you'd say that the Judge himself ought to be in jail and the burglars with him.

What do you think of an Administration that talks in that fashion to the thieves of the New Haven?

The Danger in Starting TOO HIGH

That Was the Trouble with Langley's Flying Machine. It May Be the Trouble with You

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

Mr. L. Hahn, of "Women's Wear," calls attention to an editorial in his newspaper. It ought to have as much circulation as possible, so we preach it now here—in our own way.

Professor Langley was the real inventor of the flying machine.

He died of a broken heart because his machine apparently wouldn't work. But it would have worked IF HE HAD STARTED IT FROM THE GROUND, INSTEAD OF TRYING TO START IT HIGH UP IN THE AIR.

You young gentlemen who read this may be making the Langley mistake—trying to start from too high up when you ought to be content to run along the ground for a while and start from there.

Langley planned his flying machine in imitation of the birds. He saw that the birds started flying from the limb of a tree or some high place. And he thought that his machine ought also to start from a high place. That was his mistake.

He built a platform sixty feet above the water, put his flying machine on the top of the platform, started the machinery, ran off the platform—and the machine went head first into the water and wouldn't fly.

The trouble with the machine was this—it had not been going along the ground long enough to get enough strength and headway TO KEEP IT IN THE AIR. Curtiss, the flying machine man, can take that same old Langley machine, run it along the ground for some distance then rise and fly through the air successfully.

But Langley, trying to be a bird with his machine, started from a high place, fell down and never could fly. He died without knowing that his machine would have been a success—if only he had been content to start from the ground and fly up, instead of trying to start high up and fly higher.

The moral is so evident for young men and old men that they can preach it to themselves.

The safest place to start is low down. Be sure you can go steadily, smoothly and swiftly on a low level—then it is time to rise higher.

If you try to start from too high a place before you get sufficient headway to keep you up you will come to the ground and suffer bitter disappointment, as Langley did.

Better a slow start from a low place going than a brilliant start from a high place falling. We are obliged to Mr. Hahn for suggesting this moral and the excellent adaptation of Langley's misfortune to modern preaching.

Build for the Nation in Home and School

By EDWIN MARKHAM

A GOOD text book for any man or woman studying the science and art of government is "Political Parties and Party Problems in the United States," by James Albert Woodburn, professor of American history and politics in the Indiana University. I quote a bit from his introductory survey:

"It is quite certain that the study of politics in American schools and colleges has received a notable increase of attention within the last decade. Other educational agencies—the home, the press, the pulpit, the literary club, the civic federation—have all been emphasizing the need of civic training.

"To study politics in any serious sense is but to make a large use of history, to learn the lessons of experience for future guidance. When we come to reflect on the political spirit of man and the wonderful part it has played in the history of the world, especially in the Anglo-Saxon state, it will be conceded that no part of man's being is more worthy of attention and cultivation. It is a field which a great teacher, Thomas Arnold, has called the most important for the ripened human mind—that one may become a factor in the greatest problem of human history, the problem of governing men.

"But education in politics is not chiefly a question of knowledge; it is a question of character. As the wit and wisdom of Sidney Smith long since observed, 'the only foundation of political liberty is the spirit of the people.' It is not forms of government nor the machinery of parties but civic character on which the State relies.

"Because of this close and vital relation of politics to ethics and because of the direct dependence of national character on political conduct we may well conclude that De Tocqueville was right when he declared that 'politics is the end and aim of American education.' If the life of the Republic depends upon the moral character of its citizenship, all instruction should constantly, if not consciously, keep in view this aspect of political education.

"Horace Mann used to say that what America wishes to put into the life of the nation she must first put into her schools. But no saving force can go into the schools of a nation that does not first exist as a vital force in the nation's homes. In all periods of our history politics should be brought home to the people; but the present, it seems to me, is a time when this demand should be made especially emphatic. Ordinarily political issues may not call for discussion in school and home.

"But when the political rectitude of the people is brought into issue; when rich men are known to buy their way into high office; when it becomes an actual question whether a State shall surrender its virtue to outrage and its people to pillage; when unscrupulous men deliberately, openly and unblushingly set about to corrupt the electorate of great commonwealths and yet are permitted to stand for the highest honors of their States—at such times ordinary issues would seem to fade into insignificance, and appeal should be made to the moral forces that constitute the foundations of our political society.

"In face of such issues teachers, parents and the moral pastors of the people should make politics a matter of personal concern."

Mysteries of Nature

Despite All Marvels Achieved by Chemists Over Her, We Are Yet Far From the Time When We Can Turn Her Out of Doors

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

In this age of marvellous achievements and discoveries we need an occasional dose of anti-boast. It clears up the mind and shows the way for future advance.

It cannot be denied that the chemists (with all respect for their splendid work) are the cause of a great deal of vain boasting. To accept all that is said for them, if not always by them, would be to believe that nature no longer has any secrets that cannot, in the laboratory, be made as plain and simple as A, B, C.

A great number of "synthetic" products and imitations of nature's products have been put upon the market, and their fabricators have been rash enough to try to persuade even Dr. Wiley that they are better than nature's own work. Some of these things really are good and extremely creditable to their inventors, but they are relatively few in number, and people who think that we are almost on the point of being able to dispense with the handicraft of Dame Nature and to turn away from our doors the kind old nurse who has hitherto taken such good care of us in order to make room for an automaton that can do her work better than she can, ought to have their eyes opened.

The number of nature's marvels that chemistry can imitate more or less successfully (usually less) is considerable; the number that chemistry has not the slightest notion how to imitate is immense. I am not going to make a list of such things or even to name one for a particularly good example. I take the first that comes, by accident, to my attention, a very fragrant, beautiful and useful thing, viz., red cedar or juniper wood.

Everybody who has a good lead pencil in his pocket knows what red cedar is. He knows what a smooth-grained, soft, yet crisp and flexible, delicately aromatic, pleasant flavored, light, but sufficiently strong, wood it is. If, in his youth, he ever had in his hand and subject to his jackknife a chunk cut from the dark-red heart of some old cedar post, which had stood unrotted in the ground since his great-great-grandfather's days, he will recall the wondering admiration with which he regarded it, how it perfumed the air with its strange, rich odor, and how his very knife seemed to thrill with the pleasure of cleaving its compact, elastic fibres.

The fact that man cannot make cedar wood or anything that is acceptable in its place is shown by the story of the pencil industry. The lead pencil manufacturers would be very glad to have an artificial or "synthetic" cedar if they could get it. They would rejoice if some other wood, more abundant, could be found that would answer as well as cedar does the needs of the factory and the taste of the public. Various substitutes have been tried, but none will do.

The consequence is that the world's supply of red cedar or juniper is being rapidly exhausted.

A single pencil factory in France consumes 20,000 feet of cedar lumber a year. It is so precious that, as I am informed, houses in our country in which cedar wood has been freely employed for construction in the days when lead pencils were virtually unknown and all wood was cheap, have in recent years been partly or entirely demolished in order that the crimson red wood might be sold to pencil manufacturers. Furniture made of red cedar has been broken up for a similar reason, and innumerable cedar fenceposts have been pulled out of the ground and turned to a more immediately profitable account. Old farms are said to have been found whose fences of red cedar were worth more than the entire land that they enclosed. There is within a few reds of the place where I write a red cedar tree growing with its branches interlaced with those of a number of pine trees. They all sprang out of the same soil, but the cedar in its strange alchemy, works up these materials into the precious wood of the pencil makers, while the firs, standing right in touch with it, turn them into wood of a very different kind.

Chemistry has a long road yet to travel before it can hope to put carbon, nitrogen and water together and out of their combination produce a synthetic cedar!

By taking a little thought any one can recall a great number of things that nature furnishes freely and that we cannot do without, but which still lie far beyond the range of the cunningest science. It is one thing to know what an object is made of and another to know how to make it.
